EDITOR'S PREFACE

It has always been apparent to many that the members of the Class of 1951 are deeply interested in the welfare of Princeton and in the welfare of their Class. It has been my pleasure and that of my associates to discover this fact first hand as 640 members (84%) answered our biographical questionnaires and 530 members (70%) responded to our anonymous questionnaires—the discrepancy in these responses occurred only because during the final months of our "campaign" emphasis was placed on the more important biographical data. This information, and that which we have been able to glean from the Alumni Weekly and other sources, is compiled in this chronicle of our first ten years.

The task of editing this book was eased by the able assistance given me by Keith Schnebly and Jack Bogle. From a myriad of anonymous data, Jack wrote a remarkable report on the activities of the Class during the past decade. I am sure that you will find his "Safe Now in the Wide, Wide World" interesting reading. Keith has been of tremendous help in organizing the publication of this book, and particularly valuable in the compilation of biographical information. Bruce Kennedy was kind enough to provide us with the sketches used in this book.

We wish to express our appreciation to you who took the time to complete our questionnaires, to Ed Nelson, of Progress Publishing Company, for his invaluable assistance, to the Bureau of Alumni Records for aiding us in our search for "lost" classmates, and to our wives without whose help and patience this book could not have been published.

Keith, Jack and I enjoyed editing this Ten-Year Book, and we hope that you will enjoy reading it.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

It is my privilege and pleasure to reflect rather publicly not only on the past five years, but over the ten which now comprise the Princeton History of Our Class. This reflection will be no Homeric Catalog of Ships.

We have some achievements of note: The largest Memorial Insurance Fund to date, current and solvent; the first Class Scholarship Fund in over a decade. Annual giving, class dues and the like round out an almost teleological existence destined for all Princeton Classes. But the spark we individually steal from her is the real thing.

This real thing will be aired in a Panel Discussion over Reunions. The Jeffersonian-Jacksonian Paradox — the propriety of excellence in a nation dedicated to public and subsidized education. Ten erudite Americans in "The National Purpose" come to the conclusion that a redefinition of American goals, aims, purposes, can only be effected through individuals with strength and courage found in the confidence of excellence. A need for men who could not arise out of a Bentham-Mills world of the "Mostest for all is for the Bestest."

And this is the real thing about Princeton — that which each individual takes away on his own: the feeling that you have behind you the training to move forward in any field with confidence. Ten years have given this a fair trial for all of us. We could all do with some personal reflecting.

The right to excellence is always a costly one. This time it takes the form of 53 Million For Princeton. As we look back in the years to come, as we are bound to do, let us hope to say that our circumstances did indeed allow. We may then, as now, say that individual excellence, not mere competence, "in every creative endeavor, in political life, in education, in industry — in short, universally" is not only a necessity, as John W. Gardner writes, but a reality as well.

SAFE NOW IN THE WIDE, WIDE WORLD

*Where, oh where are the grave old seniors?
Safe now in the wide, wide world.*

—Princeton Farewell Song

INTRODUCTION

What have we done in the decade since we left the cloistered confines of college for the wonders of the wide, wide world? To answer — in some detail — this question, we asked each man in the Class of 1951 a rather large number of rather personal questions. The Class response to the questionnaire was dramatic — some 70% of our members responded. That this response is statistically valid can be envisioned from the fact that Dr. Gallup normally polls about 1/100 of 1% of America's voters and gets a pretty good idea of how they'll vote (he did in 1960, at least).

Specifically, the purpose of the questionnaire was to take a composite picture of our Class, ten years after graduation. We wanted to learn about your family, your home, and your home life. We asked where you live and what kind of car you drive. We wanted to find out how you felt—physically and mentally. We wanted to know what you have done since Princeton, what your occupation is, and how you are doing at it. We asked about your salary, your other income, and your financial position. We tried to learn about your political philosophy, your contribution to your community, and your feelings about your alma mater after ten years. We tried to compare what you like today as compared to a decade ago, and also asked you how the future looked to you.

All of these questions, to be sure, give statistical answers. Many of them, of necessity, emphasize the material side of things. To try to add greater depth to our survey, therefore, we also asked a more probing question, designed to bring out your ideas to a greater degree — "what effect has your Princeton background had on your life, your career, your ideals?"

We asked — and you answered. Your answers to the questionnaire make up the composite picture of 1951 in 1961 that follows.

* * * *

YOU AND YOUR FAMILY

Basically, and not very surprisingly, we are a class of family men, married, with numerous offspring. Only a staunch 12% of us remain bachelors, while the remaining 88% is — or has been — married. Of 750 members of the Class, 637 are presently married, including five who have remarried among 25 who have been divorced or widowed. (Note: All of the Class aggregate figures in this survey are based on the questionnaires received and tabulated, statistically projected to the current Class roll of 750 men.)

About 6% of us married before we graduated from college. By the end of 1953, half of us presently enjoying the benefits of connubial existence had vowed to love, honor, and cherish. By 1960 (with our "eligible" ranks badly depleted), we had a post-graduation low of a meager twelve weddings.

The girls who married us were an intelligent lot — or at least were well educated. Of our 637 present wives, 556 went to college, including about 400 who graduated. It is perhaps not unreasonable to assume that many of those wives who didn't graduate were swept off their feet by the persuasive promises of suave '51ers, and gave up their college careers for the joys of marriage and a family.

Following marriage, the men of 1951 set out to produce our own version of the population explosion — and succeeded. To date, we have produced the almost alarming total of 1,264 children — 648 boys and 616 girls. (This ratio of boys to girls, incidentally, is quite properly in line with the national average. It should not be taken as an indication of our greater masculinity.) And we're not through yet! Based on the number of children we say we want to have, our total will reach 2,092 little souls — to feed, clothe and educate. Further, if more of our eligible bachelors swell the married ranks, even this number will grow. However, it should be noted that the "children wanted" statistic is somewhat imprecise, as exemplified by the comment of one father of three sons who said he wanted, "enough more to produce a daughter."

The married folks, on average, have two children — one boy and one girl — and want about one more. The following table shows the percentage of our married couples and the number of children they now have.

Number of Children	Percentage of Married Couples
0	15%
1	18
2	34
3	25
5 or more	3
<hr/>
Total	100%

It should be pointed out, of course, that our wives deserve some of the credit for these production records.

The various joys and heartaches that accompany married life — especially when careers are being founded and babies are being cared for — have made our marriages more durable, based on our answers to the traditional question: "do you love your wife more or less than when you married her?" 92% answered "more," 4½% answered "less," and 3½% said "the same." Perhaps improperly, we included in the "more" category several who reported that their wives were looking over their shoulders when they answered the question. Admittedly, the question may be an oversimplification, and one of our more perceptive classmates perhaps spoke for many when he said, "more ardently but less frequently." (We also decided to put him in the "more" column.)

YOUR HOME AND YOUR HOME LIFE

Considering that all of us lived in the same small college town a short decade ago, we have spread out far and wide throughout the country. While most of us live in a major city or one of its suburbs, many of us have stayed in small towns or live in rural areas, as shown in this table:

Location	Percentage of Class
Suburban Area	41%
Major City	29
Medium Town	10
Small Town	8
Rural Area	12

Slightly over half of our Class (56%) own our own homes. The remainder either rent homes (15%), or apartments (29%). A cosmopolitan 46 members of our Class own two houses—and an aristocratic 7 of us own three. Whether these multi-home owners are a cause of envy or scorn for those of us who own one place in all likelihood depends upon whether we mow our own grass, nurture our own gardens, and shovel our own snow (and perhaps whether we've had roof repairs or a tax increase in the recent past).

Typically, we live in a house worth about $25,000. (This is the median value; i.e., half of the houses we own are worth more, and half less.) All told, the 416 of us who own our own homes live in houses worth a total of about $13,500,000. (This division—for those who don't care to try it themselves—comes out to an average value of about $32,500. At this point, we might as well get across the distinction between this straight average and the median noted earlier, in the event anyone really cares.) This table shows the pattern of values in the 416 residences we own:

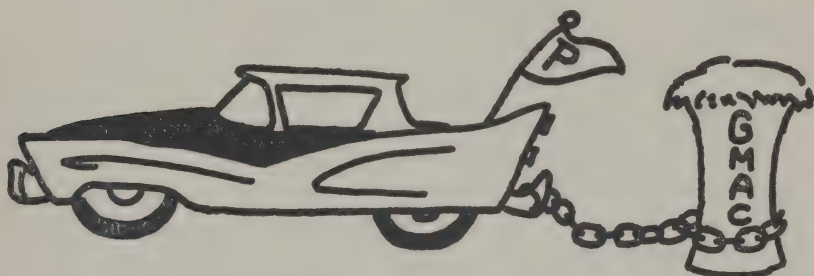

Market Value of House	Percentage of Class Home-owners
Less than $15,000	5%
$15,000 to $19,000	18
$20,000 to $24,000	22
$25,000 to $29,000	17
$30,000 to $34,000	12
$35,000 to $39,000	7
$40,000 to $49,000	6
$50,000 to $99,000	10
$100,000 or more	3
Total	100%

It takes a certain amount of carefree abandon to use the word "own" in referring to the houses above. Not only might such a word produce an unwarranted state of euphoria on our behalf, but it also might be looked upon with jaundiced eye by members of the banking community, who have lent us collectively upwards of $5,600,000 in mortgage money to buy our $13,500,000 of real estate. (This margin of safety would indicate that bankers are a careful and conservative group indeed.) A well-to-do 58 of our home owners (14%) were able to swing it without a mortgage, the remaining 358 of us having gone into hock, to the tune of about $15,600 each.

If our homes indicate a far above adequate standard of living for "Mr. Average 1951," so also do our automobiles. All told, we own a total of 940 cars—an average of about $11\frac{1}{4}$ cars each. Our ownership is shown in the following table:

Number of Cars	Percentage of Class
None	6%
1	63
2	30
3 or more	1
Total	100%

With so many young and growing families, it is not surprising that 268 of our cars are station wagons—which out-number our convertibles by a four-to-one margin. By the same token, with so many two-car families, it is not unusual (but perhaps disappointing to the Federal government in these years of gold outflow) to learn that we also own 217 cars of foreign-make, generally of the small, low-price variety. The wagons and the imports thus account for slightly over one-half of our automobiles.

But while the numbers are high, our tastes are modest. Our favorite cars are Fords (219 of them), Chevrolets (197), Plymouths (102), and Volkswagens (75). At the elegant end of the scale are only 5 Cadillacs, 2 Lincolns, 1 Bentley, and 2 Rolls-Royces (both of pre-1935 vintage). Moreover, again affirming a certain lack of "conspicuous consumption", we seem disinclined to buy new cars with each perennial change in chrome and tailfins. Rather, we drive our cars for a good many years before we replace them, as shown in the following table:

Age of Auto	Percentage of Cars Owned
Current New Models	10%
1 - 2 Years Old	31
3 - 4 Years Old	29
5 or More Years Old	30
Total	100%

In addition to our 940 cars, incidentally, '51ers report ownership of the following other vehicles: 68 boats, 5 airplanes, 4 tractors, 4 canoes, 4 motorcycles, 4 kayaks, 4 bicycles, and 1 trailer. (Those who reported ownership of baby carriages, power mowers, tricycles, sleds, and go-carts may be disappointed not to find them tabulated. We had to draw the line somewhere.)

At home, our taste in pastimes is, to say the least, diverse. While the table below shows that reading is an overwhelming favorite, the "other" category includes many different pastimes: carpentry, dancing, do-it-yourself, hi-fi, music, old cars, photography, playing with kids, playing trumpet, refinishing furniture, sack, sleep, ship models, stamps and theatre.

Pastime	Percentage of Class
Reading	48%
Television	16
Bridge	13
Sex	3
Movies	3
Poker	3
Conversation	2
Other	12
Total	100%

Lest anyone should conclude that the low rating accorded to conversation and sex means that we are men of neither intelligence nor action, respectively, it might be noted that (a) neither were among the choices listed on our questionnaire, (b) these two categories would appear to be outside of what most of us think of as pastimes, and (c) while there is no record of our ability to hold our own in vibrant conversation, our "gross class product" of children would indicate that more than 3% of us have a healthy interest in the feminine gender.

We read a great deal. On average, 21 books a year for each of us. This average, to be sure, was helped out significantly by the large number of teachers among us. Be that as it may, however, only 18 of us confess to reading nary a single book in the course of a year. We are very strong on magazines, too, each of us reading an average of five magazines on a regular weekly or monthly basis.

On the other hand, we don't invest much of our time in television or at the movies. We average a meager five hours a week gazing at television—and a startling 150 of us (one-fifth of the class) report that they watch television on no regular basis whatever. (According to the experts, incidentally, the average home television set is in use 37 hours a week.) We attend about ten movies a year, but our bachelors are the heavy contributors to the coffers of Hollywood and build up this average (much in the same way as our educators push up our book-reading).

While we relax and enjoy our books, magazines and television, our intelligent wives have their work cut out for them—bringing up 1,264 offspring and keeping 637 homes tidy. By and large, they do it themselves, although 85 of us have provided our spouses with a full-time servant. Another ten of us have gone overboard and hired two servants. And a grand and lordly nine of us have gone completely haywire and have three. This leaves 533 class husbands perceptive enough to appreciate the character-building benefits of hard work for their wives.

HOW ARE YOU FEELING?

As a Class, we feel pretty good. Our Class middle-man (there's that median again) says he feels physically wonderful and mentally happy. A fortunate 12% of us feel both better-than-ever physically and on-top-of-the-world mentally. How do you feel? You can compare it with the following table showing 1951's physical and mental well-being.

P h y s i c a l l y		M e n t a l l y
Better Than Ever	22%	On-Top-of-the-World	21%
Wonderful	34	Happy	56
Okay	43	Neutral	15
Awful	1	Perplexed	7
		Down-in-the-Dumps	1
Total		Total
	100%		100%

At the risk of generalizing, it should be reported (without editorial comment) that of the 92 of us who rate ourselves at the top of the scale in mind and body, 85 are married. Wives who read this report may note and gloat appropriately.

As the above table might suggest, we have been relatively free from disability over the past decade. About 75% of us have by and large remained out of the clutches of the medical profession. On the other hand, the total number major ailments suffered by the remaining one-quarter of the Class is impressive, albeit in a negative sort of way. Our medical catalogue shows—

- 61 of us have had operations
- 59 have had major illnesses
- 55 have undergone psychiatric treatment
- 39 have had ulcers
- 20 have been injured in major accidents
- and just 1 of us has had a heart attack

If the insurance companies are right about the adverse effects of too much weight on health, however, our record of vitality will soon be bismirched. The Class of 1951 has not been watching its collective waistline. 515 of us weigh more than we did in college, gaining a gross total of almost $3\frac{1}{2}$ tons since graduation (6,680 pounds, to be exact). A small tribe of careful eaters (about 75 of us) have lost 725 pounds, so our net gain is a nevertheless portly (but not paltry) three tons. This table shows the gains and losses:

Weight Now vs. in College	Percentage of Class	Average Gain or Loss
More	69%	+ 13 lbs.
About Same	21	-----
Less	10	— $9\frac{1}{2}$ lbs.
<hr/>		<hr/>
Total	100%	+ 8 lbs.

On average, we weigh in at 170 lbs. currently, with a ponderous 11% of us topping the 200 lb. mark, and a slim 10% staying under 150 lbs.

Our rounder faces and bellies are not the only changes in our appearance. Our growing maturity (physically, at least) is symbolized by many changes in the crowns that sit above our nettled brows. For some, this change began a decade or more ago. For others, it is quite recent. One of our number exclaimed, "I found the first white hair this morning!" A fortunate 49% of the Class has held the hairline, but 38% notice it receding. The remaining 13% find their hair has either turned grey (11%), white ($\frac{1}{2}\%$), or departed ($1\frac{1}{2}\%$). Presumably, receded is to departed as recession is to depression—not as serious, but still a cause for concern.

More pairs of glasses also grace our physiognomies. There are 82 of us who began to wear glasses in the past decade, although 27 of us, relieved of the eye-straining ordeal of college, have stopped wearing them in the same period. Today, slightly over half of us (54%) wear glasses either full-time (30%) or part of the time (24%).

What about smoking and drinking (at the risk of dwelling on our frailties)? Well, to begin with, we've lost a lot of smokers. While 62% of us were held in the vice-like grip of nicotine ten years ago, today a bare majority (54%) of us indulge — an intrepid 60 classmates having renounced the evil weed. Actually, less than half of the Class smokes cigarettes, as shown in this table:

Smoking	Percent of Class
Cigarettes	44%
Pipes	7
Cigars	3
<hr/>
Total Smokers	54%
Non-Smokers	46%
Total	100%

Among our present smokers, 51% smoke more than in college, 39% about the same amount, and 10% smoke less. The cigarette puffers puff, on average, 8½ packs a week, despite the exhortations of the medical profession and the "Reader's Digest" (or perhaps because the tobacco companies' exhortations appear in every magazine we read, and on a seemingly endless number of television programs).

But if smoking has lost many adherents in a decade, drinking has made significant inroads. Those admitting at least a passing acquaintance with the demon rum have risen from 81% of the Class to 91%. This 10% net increase is accounted for by 79 '51ers who began to tipple after graduation, less a meager but stoic four of us who renounced it. The increase in drinkers, however, has not been accompanied by any significant increase in drinking. Exactly half of those who drink report no increase in their consumption of alcohol since college days, with 43% drinking less and 7% about the same. The remaining half of our drinkers, of course, are drinking more. On average, we manage to stow away about 9¼ drinks a week. Some answers here, however, were rather vague ("counting spoils all the fun") or unstatistical ("no way of estimating—sometimes only drink wine for weeks on end; other times can kill a bottle with wife in two nights.").

Whether our alcoholic consumption is too much or too little (or too good or too bad) perhaps depends on how heavy is the hand that pours the drink. If we assume that we average a 1½ oz. nip, our rather extraordinary total of some 327,500 drinks a year (not counting what our wives drink) would mean we purchase about 19,200 bottles annually. (Don't despair, however, for it is possible that we use no Miltown at all.) It may be a hopeful sign that exactly half of us don't as a matter of course toss down a quick cocktail before dinner, and the half who do generally limit themselves to 1½ cocktails. Our women-folk practice slightly stricter abstinence, 55% of them not usually having cocktails in the evening — with most of the others sticking to a conservative single drink. This difference between the sexes perhaps may be accounted for by the harder work and greater tension that we endure at the office or on the job.

AFTER PRINCETON —

Grad School, Government Service, Getting Settled

Each of us probably thinks of Princeton's Class of 1951 in our own terms — of friends made, courses studied, experiences shared. These factors, of course, were different for each one of us, so our individual memories and recollections give each of us a different picture of what our four college years meant, and what our college class was like. But if there were subjective differences at Princeton in 1947-1951, they fade into insignificance when we look at the objective differences that have quite naturally taken place in 1951-1961. We have travelled many different roads.

Most members of the immortal class that began Princeton in September, 1947, went on to graduate in June, 1951. However, we were not immune to the attrition that attacks any large group — compounded by the dislocations of a "police action" in Korea — and some of us left Princeton in this period. One of us who didn't make it reported: "Dean Godolphin caught up with me. But, no regrets!" However, as this table shows, the vast majority of us (97%) went on to graduate — either from Princeton in 1951, or in another year, or from another college.

College Graduation	Percentage of Class
Graduated from Princeton in 1951	88%
Graduated from Princeton in another year	5
Graduated from another college	4
Did not graduate	3
Total	100%

After a proud handshake and the delivery of an impressive sheepskin, out we went into the wide, wide world. At least, some of us did. But most of us (58%) went on to graduate school of one kind or another, and logged in a total of three years each, on average. Three-quarters of those who started grad school saw it to completion with a second handshake and a second sheepskin, while the remaining one-fourth of our graduate scholars did not.

Mixed in with our jobs and our graduate studies was military service. It's difficult to summarize our collective service experience, since some went in the service before grad school and others afterwards. Also, about 14% of our Class had been in the armed forces prior to entering Princeton, mostly in World War II, and were therefore generally exempt from going back in again. (However, Uncle Sam did catch 9 of our 103 World War II veterans for the second time). This table shows the breakdown of our service experience:

Armed Service	Percentage of Class
Served prior to Princeton	14%
Served in Korean Conflict	54
Served after Korea	10
Total Veterans	78%
Non-Veterans	22%
Total	100%

On average, Uncle Sam had the benefits of 1951's talent for two-and-one-half years. Fortunately, the signing of the Korean truce in 1954 kept many of us out of combat in Korea, and of our 405 men who served during this period, just 87 saw actual combat (or 86, if we reduce the total to account for one of us who reported that he was engaged in combat only while on Shore Patrol).

Our urge to build our own brainpower in grad school, plus our nation's need to build its firepower in a decade of hot and cold war, gave us a wide spread of years before we started our chosen occupations. This table shows our average date of entry into our selected field of endeavor.

	Percentage of Class	Date Starting Occupation
Went Directly into Occupation	17%	Summer, 1951
*Went in Military Service Only	25	Winter, 1953-4
Went to Graduate School Only	20	Summer, 1954
*Had both Military Service and Grad School	38	Winter, 1956-7
Total	100%	Autumn, 1954

*Excluding World War II Veterans

In the spring of 1961, then, our average man has been working at his career for some six and one-half years. A good number (about 127 of us) are lucky enough to have almost ten years of business experience behind us, while a dwindling band of nine of us has not yet completed its studies and joined the ranks of the employed. (However, it should be emphasized that the Secretary of Labor classifies only those who are actively seeking work as "unemployed," so our Class cuts a handsome and prosperous figure with its 100% employment record.)

But if we haven't been working too long, we certainly have had a variety of experience. All told, we've held a total of some 1,450 jobs (excluding military service) since graduation, or an average of almost two jobs each. Less than one-half of us have unflinchingly held the same job we began with, as shown in the following table:

Number of Jobs	Percentage of Class

Today, the Class of 1951 covers a wide variety of businesses and professions. Most of us (59%) are in business and finance, but we also have a very high proportion (40%) of men in the professions and the nation's service. While it is difficult to classify our occupations on any uniform basis, the following table is an effort to show how many of us are in each major group.

FANCY FINANCIAL FIGURES

With such a wide variety of occupations, it is not particularly surprising that we have a wide variety of earned incomes. They range, in fact, from less than $1,000 a year all the way up to a reported $85,000. About 17% of us earn $5,000 a year or less, while at the other end of the scale 9% of us top the $15,000 mark (including a slim 2% who top $25,000 annually). Our average salary is $10,200 per year, and our median salary is $8,500.

The salaries vary substantially from one occupation group to another—ranging from $4,000 for the doctors (their day is assumed to be coming, however; most of them are still in residency) up to $13,000 for our investment men (due in part at least to the fact that the stock market — a reflection of confidence in the future of our nation's economy — has done little but rise since the Class of 1951 graduated). A detailed breakdown (which corresponds to the occupational groupings listed earlier) follows:

Business or Profession	Median Salary
Investments	$13,000
Advertising	12,000
Manufacturing	11,000
Banking	11,000
General Business	10,000
Engineering	10,000
Business Sales	9,500

Armed Forces	7,000
Ministry	7,000
Education (including Research)	6,500
Medicine (including Dentistry)	4,000
	<hr/>
Class Median	$8,500

If our doctors earn the least, however, they work the most — about 85 hours a week. Our wealthy fellows in the investment fraternity and the grey flannel world of advertising (at the upper income end of our occupation groups) work some 50 hours a week, by way of comparison. Whether or not this inverse relationship between making money and working long hours is a causal one, we leave to your own decision and discretion.

On average, we work some 50 hours a week on the job. Our 68 doctors, however, weight this average heavily, and the median work week is a somewhat shorter 45 hours. These aren't all the hours we put in, however. Some 58% of us also bring home a briefcase full of work from time to time, the median (including only those who in fact bring work home) being about 6 hours worth a week.

We have enjoyed a rather nice increase in our salaries since we began working. Our average starting salary on our first job (excluding military service) was $300 a month. Thus, in the short course of some 61½ years, our average salary has jumped by almost three times — from $3,600 to $10,200 annually. Or, looking at it from the other side of the coin, our collective employers have increased their payroll to the Class of 1951 from $2,700,000 to $7,600,000 a year.

Most of us modestly feel that — taking into account our personal progress and our contributions to our jobs, as well as our advancement in salary — we have achieved reasonable success in our occupations thus far. Some 93% of us believe we are successful, while 6% don't think so. An uncertain 1% aren't sure. Among those who believe they have achieved a reasonable degree of success, most credit a combination of luck and ability for their progress, as shown in this table:

Prime Reason for Success	Percent
Ability and Luck	57%
Ability	28
Hard Work	7
Luck	2
Other	6

-------	------

It should be pointed out that "luck," "ability," or "both" were the alternatives given on the class questionnaire, with a space left for any other reasons to be listed. Thus, hard work made a stronger showing (thank heavens) than the figures might indicate. Some of the other reasons given for success were quite illuminating: circumstances, connections, contacts, education, help from others, patience, persistence, prayer, soft criticism, training, and family firm.

Incidentally, to the extent that a running headstart may have contributed to our success, it should be pointed out that some 10% of us went to work for family firms — 56 of us working for our own families, and an additional 14 employed by our in-laws. On the other hand, a gratifying amount of individuality and enterprise is indicated by the fact that 7% of us now work for our own firms — including 32 of us in business and finance, and 18 of our professional men (largely lawyers).

About one-third of us struggle happily along on our salaries. For the fortunate remaining two-thirds of the class, however, our salaries are augmented by income from a number of other sources. In aggregate, this outside income adds some $3,200,000 to our $7,600,000 collective salary — bringing our total income to a healthy $10,800,000. This averages out to $14,400 each — the median figure being a more conservative $10,200.

This outside income (the Communists call it unearned income) gives a healthy boost to our schedule of salary income. For example, as shown in the table that follows, only 2% of us earn more than $25,000 a year, but 9% of us have total family income in excess of $25,000:

Amount of Income	Percent of Class
	Salary Only	Total Family Income

From whence comes all of this money that pushes our income upward with such rocket-like thrust? Most of it (68%) comes from securities and other investments. In general, we can presume that a substantial portion of the securities and investments, in turn, come from the kindness of either our own relatives or those of our wives. Another 18% comes from trust funds, which are assumed to be derived from family sources in all instances. With 86% of our additional income, then, coming from our good judgment in either being born with a silver spoon in our mouth or marrying a millionheiress, or both, it would appear that we can't credit ourselves with an overcapacity of financial acumen, at this early stage in any event. However, a special tip of the hat is certainly due our 84 working wives — and most especially to the seven of them who manage to out-earn their husbands — who add some $230,000 annually to the family coffers. This table summarizes our income situation:

Source	Percent of Class

Can we live within our incomes? The Class of 1951 answers "yes" with a deafening roar. Some 82% of us report that our outgo is no more than our income, leaving an 18% minority who report that thus far they are unable to make ends meet. Incidentally, we impartially included in the former group those who said "barely," and in the latter group those who said "occasionally" plus one who checked "yes," but noted, "but my wife can't. Better make it 'no.'"

Looking to the future, 98% of us optimistically expect our income to be higher in 1971 than it was in 1961. (Although no one expects it to be lower, 2% think their income will be the same then as now). And, looking across that dreamily distant decade, 94% of us expect that we will be able to live within our incomes then. It was interesting to note that—despite rising income expectations — one-third of those who can't live within their incomes now believe they still won't be able to then. While this is certainly a commendably realistic philosophy, we can't help but wonder who will make up the deficit each year.

It goes without saying that it takes a lot of capital to produce a lot of income. It therefore is not surprising to learn that the Class of 1951 has a rather substantial aggregate investment portfolio — its financial nose to the Wall Street grindstone producing interest coupons and dividend checks with clock-like regularity. Our investment income of $2,200,000 reported earlier is produced by a total investment fund of about $66,000,000, including our own investments as well as any dowries that our women-folk may have brought along. This aggregate fund has a total of 576 class "shareholders" — with their individual investments shown in the table below:

Those readers with sharp eyes and quick minds may notice that, while 76% of us report that we own investments, only 52% of us report that we receive investment income. The apparent reason for this discrepancy is that most of those who receive relatively small amounts of dividends did not include them in their income figure — i.e., a 3% return on a $3,000 investment is only $90 a year. There is no need for the conscientious to worry about similar negligence on tax returns, however, since the first $100 of dividends received is generally tax-free. (Furthermore, as a Class we pay in the neighborhood of $2,200,000 annually to Uncle Sam, so he shouldn't get too technical with us.)

You may recall that earlier in this tract we made rather a big issue over the difference between the average and the median. That this difference is in fact significant is indicated by the disparity between the median value of our investments — a conservative $15,000 — and the average value — a liberal $115,000 — (in each case, including only those reporting ownership of investments). In other words, our 7 millionaires carry a great deal of weight in this average — and in other areas too, in all probability.

We are in a pretty good cash position. Asked to list total cash, checking account, and savings account figures, only 58 of us reported $100 or less. As a group, we have about $3,000,000 in our wallets and bank accounts. This averages out to some $4,000 each—compared to a median of $1,800. Again, however, the big money pushed up this average — with a tight-fisted four of us having $100,000 or more of cash ready on demand, including one of our number who reports having squirreled-away $250,000. The following table will enable you to compare your own cash reserves with those of both our penny-pinchers and our spendthrifts:

Wrapping up our group of fancy financial figures, we asked each classmate how much life insurance he had. It was plenty! Suffice it to say that if a well-timed bomb were dropped on a well-attended tenth reunion, the insurance companies of the United States would be shaken down to the merry tune of $30,500,000. Each of our wives (or other beneficiaries) would be richer by $43,000 on average (the median was about $2,000 less). About 43 of us showed complete immunity to the importunings of the life insurance salesman, while nine of us were persuaded to purchase $200,000 or more, as shown below:

Although there is doubtless no need to dazzle the world further with the sparkle of our total wealth, we can conclude this section by adding our combined resources together:

Cash, Bank Accounts	$ 3,000,000
Investments	66,000,000
Life Insurance (face value)	30,500,000
Real Estate (less mortgages)	7,900,000

Total Assets	$107,400,000

As a group, we are very fortunate indeed.

YOUR POLITICS AND COMMUNITY ACTIVITIES

If the possession of property is what makes a man conservative, the figures shown above provide a good reason for our Class political philosophy. Not only are we dominantly Republican and conservative, but we are considerably stronger in both areas than we were a decade ago.

Currently, we have 456 registered Republicans, 182 Democrats (many of whom emphasized that they lived in the South and couldn't be anything else), and 112 independents. Ten years ago, interestingly enough, there were 277 independents. Presumably, when exposed to political realities, the independents became discouraged by being disenfranchised in primary elections and fled to the established parties. On balance, of the 165 independents who gave up this status, 69 became Democrats and 96 joined the Republican ranks.

We are just about as conservative (60% of us) as we are Republican (61%). (It goes without saying that the percentage is not made up of the same people in each case). Here is the lineup now as compared to a decade ago:

Political Philosophy	Percentage of Class
	In 1961	In 1951
Conservative	60%	47%
Liberal	38	48
Radical	2	5
Total	100%	100%

After the foregoing table, it will come as little surprise to know that most of us (60% of those who answered the question) feel that they've become more conservative since college, as compared to 32% who are less conservative, and 8% who feel about the same in the intensity of their political philosophy. However, a number of us didn't answer the "conservative-liberal" question, noting such comments as, "I don't fit any pattern," "I don't know what these things mean," and "Tell me what you mean and I will tell you what I think." (As the questionnaire was anonymous, we unfortunately couldn't tell him what we meant.)

In general, however, it would appear that most of us are only passive participants in the political arena. A total of just 36 of us have been enthroned in political office, including 11 who have been elected and 25 who have been appointed to office. This leaves the remaining 95% of us as just plain voters.

To a degree, it may be that what we have lacked in political energy, we have made up for by serving our communities in other ways. Slightly more than half of us (52%) report that we are actively working for one or more worthy local causes. The most typical activity is money-raising for charities (36% of us do this). Some 18% of us work for one or another of the various welfare organizations, and 19% give their time and efforts to other miscellaneous civic groups — such as the YMCA, PTA, Rotary, Boy Scouts, Junior Chamber of Commerce, and Church. (These three percentages exceed the 52% total since many of us are involved in more than one community activity.)

YOU AND YOUR ALMA MATER

It is, obviously, impossible to measure the relationship of the Class of 1951 to Princeton University in terms of loyalty, steadfastness and devotion. These factors hardly lend themselves to quantitative analysis. Nevertheless, we included in the class questionnaire some questions designed at least to give some indication of our support of and interest in our Alma Mater. Have we supported Princeton? Have we kept up our interest in her? Perhaps you can draw your own conclusions from the responses which are summarized in this section.

Financially, our support clearly has been good. Slightly more than 95% of us report that we have provided cash responses to one or more of the myriad appeals for funds that are the legacy of a college education. Annual Giving is our favorite way to help Princeton, but we also have a high percentage of Class Dues payers and memorial insurance subscribers, as shown below:

Percentage of Class Reporting Gifts
Annual Giving	91%
Class Dues	80
Memorial Insurance	73
Gould Memorial	25
Other	9
None	5

It should be noted that these percentages may exceed the campaign participation figures we report each year, since some respondents may give only on an intermittent basis. Should our Class Agent for Annual Giving and Class Treasurer look on these figures with healthy skepticism, however, perhaps the above records can serve as targets to be attained each year. It would certainly be easy for these two money-raisers if all of us answered as one of our classmates did: "I give to all Princeton requests for funds."

If our financial support is good, our Reunion record would perhaps be characterized as spotty, at best. Even when allowance is made for our far-flung existence in the wide, wide world, the fact that less than a quarter of us have attended more than two reunions would indicate that our interest in Princeton is not as great as it might be. This conclusion would certainly be borne out by the table below, which also shows that almost half of us have never attended Reunions.

Number of Reunions Attended	Percentage of Class
None	42%
1	19
2	16
5 - 6	7
7 - 8	2
Total	100%

If our attendance at Reunions is intermittent, however, we go a long way toward recouping some credit by our continuing interest in Princeton football. When the frost is on the pumpkin, and when the color of autumn starts to emerge, we flock to Palmer Stadium in our station wagons to partake of aperitifs, picnics, and physical exercise (vicariously, at least). Almost two-thirds of us see one or more football games a year — our top fan reporting that he sees all nine. This table summarizes our football interest:

Average Number of Games Attended	Percentage of Class
None	41%
1	33
2	14
5 or more	3
Total	100%

No matter which of the above indicators is the best measure of our interest in Princeton, we certainly heartily endorse our stay there, as evidenced by the answer to the traditional question: "If you had to do it over again, would you attend Princeton?" Our answer:

— A ringing "yes":	92%
— A disappointed "no":	6
— A tentative "maybe":	2

But if we loved Princeton, we were certainly less than happy with our choice of major study. An incredible total of 292 of us indicated that we would not select the same major again, as shown in this tabulation:

Select Same Major	Percentage of Class
Yes	58%
No	39
Maybe	3
Total	100%

This table shows either (a) that we have certainly changed a great deal over the turbulent course of the frantic 'fifties (not to be confused with the soaring 'sixties) or (b) that greater guidance in our choice of majors would have been a splendid benefit to us. Incidentally, the slings and arrows of career-building appear to have increased our disappointment with our major course of study—the 39% who would choose differently now compares with 26% who felt this way when we graduated ten years ago.

But we want our sons to follow us through Nassau's halls. Responding to another traditional question, 85% of us say we would like our sons to attend Princeton. Only 4% would not (one of whom coldly noted, "prefer Harvard"), the remaining 11% being included in the "maybe" column with comments such as "don't care" (in a few cases) or "if he wants to" and "it's up to him" (in most instances). It would thus appear that some of those who were perhaps disappointed a decade ago have now seen the light: in 1951, 9% of us answered "no" to the same question. (The remainder of us were recorded as "yes." Presumably in those cocksure days when theory had not yet been seasoned by practice, no one considered the possibility of saying "maybe.")

NAMING FAVORITES

The change—or lack of change—in our tastes can be seen from the list of our "favorites" now and a decade ago.

Favorite	1961	1951
Sport to Play	1. Tennis 2. Golf	Tennis Football
Novel	1. Advise and Consent 2. Caine Mutiny	This Side of Paradise The Naked and the Dead
TV Program	1. Play of the Week 2. Maverick	Your Show of Shows Kukla, Fran & Ollie
Play	1. My Fair Lady 2. Hamlet	South Pacific Mr. Roberts
Comic Strip	1. Peanuts 2. Li'l Abner	Li'l Abner Blondie
Author	1. Hemingway 2. Shakespeare	Hemingway F. Scott Fitzgerald
Comedian	1. Bob Hope 2. Jack Benny	Bob Hope Sid Caesar
Magazine	1. Time 2. New Yorker	Life Time
Newspaper	1. New York Times 2. N. Y. Herald Tribune	New York Times N. Y. Herald Tribune
Cigarette	1. Kent 2. Pall Mall	Chesterfield Lucky Strike
Beverage	1. Scotch 2. Milk	Beer Milk

Movie	1. Bridge on the River	The Red Shoes
	Kwai
Desert Island Companion	2. Around the World in 80 Days	All About Eve
	1. Wife	Elizabeth Taylor
	2. Brigitte Bardot	Ava Gardner
Public Personality	1. Eisenhower	Eisenhower
	2. Stevenson	Stalin

A few comments on the 1961 list may be appropriate.

- We were pretty much in agreement on our favorite public personality, desert island companion, newspaper, magazine, comedian, comic strip, and sport to play.
- We couldn't agree at all on our favorite novel (90 were suggested), television program (66), play (63), or movie (an amazing 96 were nominated).
- One of us who chose his wife as desert island companion asked, "Is this allowed?"
- The present President of the United States drew less than 1% of our total vote for "favorite public personality." (However, our questionnaire was sent out before his nomination and election.)
- Of those who tried, about one-half couldn't spell "Maverick."
- Most of those who "liked Ike" also choose their wife as desert island companion (Psychiatrists, please note). Most of those who like Adlai added an exclamation mark!
- Our now-favorite cigarette wasn't even invented in 1951, and our runner-up as desert island companion was only 16 then.
- "The Wall Street Journal" almost eased the "Trib" out of second place in newspapers.
- And, finally, our replacement of beer with scotch may be a good indication of our growing sensitivity of taste and the expansive well-being of our wallets.

WE LOOK TO THE FUTURE

Whether our vision of the future is clear, hazy, or downright obscure, only time will tell. And perhaps it wasn't quite fair to try to make political and economic prophets out of our diverse group of doctors, lawyers, educators, merchants, engineers, salesmen, financiers, et al. But, in any event, we thought it would be interesting to put each classmate in the seer's seat, so that ten years from now, we can see just how good our collective vision was.

Most of us think that there isn't much likelihood of World War III. However, a strong minority thinks it is either (merely) probable or (heaven help us) inevitable, as shown in this table:

World War III	Percentage of Class
Impossible	3%
Unlikely	61
Possible	6
Probable	26
Inevitable	4
Total	100%

Will America be a relatively stronger world power ten years from now? Opinion on this vital question was extremely diverse, with a near standoff between the jingoists, the pessimists and the neutrals, as shown below:

U. S. as a World Power in 1971	Percentage of Class
Stronger	28%
Weaker	33
Relatively Unchanged	39
Total	100%

Let it be emphasized, for the record, that this is decidedly not the "prestige survey" that played such a controversial role in the 1960 Presidential election.

When our twentieth reunion rolls around, our Federal government will have carried us even further down the road toward womb-to-tomb security, if we know what we're talking about. Not only did few of us foresee growing strength for our capitalistic system of economic individualism, but many classmates even objected to the critical implications they read into the phrase "welfare state." Some called this a "loaded" or "iffy" question, and one of us complained, "This is out-of-date terminology." This table, which summarizes our responses, should be viewed in the light of these comments:

U.S. in 1971	Percentage of Class
Capitalism Stronger	10%
Welfare State Stronger	67
Things About Unchanged	23
Total	100%

Despite (or perhaps because of) our assumption of even bigger "big government," most of us feel rather optimistic about the economic future of the United States. Over the next decade, we look for relative economic stability—with growth accompanied by mild business cycles. Few of us indeed accept either the "secular stagnation" thesis advanced during the 'thirties, or the possibility that the severe cycles of the past will be repeated. (The percentages in this table total more than 100% since more than one choice could be selected.)

U. S. Economy in Next Decade	Percentage of Class
Relative Stability	37%
Strong Growth	37
General Stagnation	8
Mild Cycles	60
Severe Cycles	8

And right in step with this healthy economy, we should have a rising stock market—certainly a windfall for a Class of capitalists such as ours. Only one of every sixteen of us thinks stock prices will be lower in 1971 than they were in 1961. (It may be well, however, at least to point out that there is an old axiom in Wall Street—"The crowd is always wrong.") Here is our prediction:

Stock Prices in 1971	Percentage of Class
Higher	83%
Lower	6
Unchanged	11
	<hr/> 100%

So there our prognostications are. May we look back on them ten years hence with charity and perhaps amusement at how hard it is to look very far ahead in the march of time.

HAS PRINCETON BEEN A MAJOR INFLUENCE ON OUR LIVES?

The final query in our questionnaire was "Considering everything, what would you say the effect of your Princeton background has been on your life, your career, and your ideals?" At the risk of adding a few final statistics—at the same time realizing that there is really no statistical answer to such a question—let it be said that an impressive ratio of nine out of every ten of us who returned the questionnaire took the trouble to answer the question—mostly in some detail. Of those who responded, about 88% felt that the general effect was beneficial, while the remaining 12% felt there was either no effect at all, or a generally unfavorable one.

- Many of us carefully answered each of the three parts of the question:
- "life: caused me to search for something better; career: equipped me with the necessary intellectual tools to achieve success; ideals: has had little effect."
 - "it has enriched my life, furthered my career, and strengthened my ideals."
 - "on my life and career, I would say that Princeton has had a profound effect. The job I have, and the way in which I live are directly attributable to my years here at Princeton. As for my ideals and values, I would say that these were largely formed before I came to Princeton, and they were merely sharpened (or in some cases dulled) by exposure to a Princeton education."
 - "critical self-analysis, certain prestige value in business, a source of many ideals, most of which have managed to survive."

Others answered the question briefly. Some were positive: "profound,"

"beneficial," "an awakening effect," "good." Some weren't so sure: "a bit stuffy, but in the right direction generally," "no serious harm done," "more of a help than a hindrance."

Many were numbered among the completely satisfied:

- "the finest start in life possible; wider interests, tolerance, appreciation."
- "much better man for having gone to Princeton; wouldn't trade it for the world."
- "the best possible start a man could ask for."
- "to upgrade my goals, ambitions, and ideals."
- "it taught me how to think."

Others had mixed emotions: "created a well-oriented individual in need of psychiatric care—but I would do it again if I could get in "; "put it this way—out here in the midwest, 'Princeton' means little, but I know I'm a Princeton man." By the same token, the contribution that our Princeton background made to our lives ranged from the very limited—"memories of four years of fun"—to the conceited—"has made me a mental and moral giant"—to what would appear to be an almost unrepayable debt—"gave me background and knowledge to hold present job, marry charming wife, and live delightful, useful, and active life."

Among those who were classified in the "unfavorable response" group, most mentioned superficiality of one kind or another—

- "Princeton's snobbish reputation is a detriment to my career."
- "it has been useful only as a status mark."
- "very little except in dress."
- "a Princeton education is a marvelous luxury having little or no effect on one's life and ideals, and no effect whatsoever on any career worth pursuing."

Others felt that the education they received was either not outstanding ("might have received the same at any number of institutions," and "surprisingly little, compared with what other Ivy colleges might have produced") or perhaps too good ("trained as prime minister, only dog-catcher jobs available").

The four comments that follow provide a good summary of the negative or uncertain responses — ranging from the confused to the downright annoyed:

- "Nil — Life: I always was a gentleman; Career: could have had same going to Purdue; Ideals: unchanged and unaffected by Princeton."
- "Some other college would have been much better for me. Princeton encouraged in me an attitude that you don't have to work hard to get ahead (it has taken several years to shake that off). Princeton may have helped me get a job, but it hasn't helped my career as much as another major at another college would have. In other words, liberal arts is useless in preparing you for a career. A business education would have been better. By discouraging religion Princeton almost destroyed my ideals. I have finally come back to religion—thank heaven."
- "Gained me respect in Navy; committed me to marry college girl; enabled me to marry college girl; made me 'expert' on recent bicker controversies; helps get job but doesn't help get pro football tickets; more seriously, Princeton obviously made me an entirely different person than if I'd gone to Southern Cal. For better or worse I will never know, but certainly different."

—"Princeton has (1) made Brooks Bros. my haberdasher; (2) made it easy to obtain employment; (3) made material success imperative. In all other respects, I am the same as I would be if I had attended Tufts College."

But if the negative answers may hurt to read, or may touch a sensitive nerve, it should be emphasized that they constitute a small minority of the total. Compared with the hundreds of favorable comments, they are therefore perhaps less significant than they appear. Many of us answered, not only favorably, but in detail, and in a manner that was forthright, revealing, and constructive. There follow eight of these essay answers, which have been selected as the most representative of those received. They are well worth reading:

—"Most of that which I know I learned after leaving Princeton. But it was in my undergraduate days that my eyes were first opened, my dull mental processes stimulated. I can trace little of my present way of life or ideals to Princeton but like the foundation of a building that lies unseen beneath the ground, I'm sure my Princeton experience lies beneath the visible me—ten years after."

—"It emphasized the importance of religious ideals; improved my tolerance for minorities. It has decreased my personal 'ambition' and made me more of a humanist who resists falling into stereotyped categories. I feel that I must carry a larger share of the burdens of all men."

—"Effect on life — Princeton has broadened the concepts I originally had concerning society, religion, individual psychology. Effect on career — an Ivy League college never hurt anyone's career — business acquaintances seem to appreciate my college background. Effect on ideals — Princeton has certainly helped to bring my ideals down to earth and make them adaptable to everyday life."

—"Princeton is responsible for my being where I am today and where I hope to be in the future. Going to Princeton has, for me, been the greatest single factor in directing my life."

—"Princeton opened to me new worlds of art, music, literature, and free thinking. I hope, and I like to think that these vistas have widened rather than narrowed since my graduation. Princeton also gave me adequate specific preparation for my chosen profession—medicine—for which I am grateful, but which could have been attained as easily or perhaps better elsewhere. The 'extras,' available at Princeton, make it the outstanding University that it is. I only wish that I had taken more advantage of them rather than going to Princeton specifically to be prepared for a medical career. The ideals, which I took to Princeton, came through relatively untouched, though strengthened through having been exposed to a variety of conflicting ideals. Good doctors should have the quality of human awareness. If I am a good doctor, as opposed to being strictly a scientist, I owe this to my Princeton education."

—"I would say that my Princeton experience gave me primarily confidence. The realities of the world and business can rudely shake this confidence but it stays alive. I don't think Princeton has shaped my career particularly. Probably the greatest value of Princeton is the association with an outstanding bunch of individuals and this background raises one's ideals probably more than one realizes."

—"My Princeton background has served as a rock foundation, both in my life and in my career. Just being a Princeton graduate gives one a certain self-confidence; to have graduated from Princeton is to have an initial presumption in one's favor, both on and off the job. And then, when one is self-confident, one can work (and play) more effectively. The training in analysis and discussion of problems, and in influencing others and in using their ideas, provided by the precept system, has been of prime importance. I make use of this portion of my Princeton experience daily. My Princeton experience had little effect on my ideals, which were already quite well formed. However, it did broaden my own ideas as to potential accomplishment, and also equipped me to face limited frustrations with equanimity, and with the ability to gather myself and redirect my efforts. You might say that Princeton taught me that it is not necessary to compromise one's ideals, yet that one must accept less than complete satisfaction of them, often, at any given time."

—"It has given me an awareness and desire for striving for the best in life; to develop talents and resources to benefit others as well as self and family. Has strengthened my ideals, taught me to accept hardships of competition or circumstances and not to be defeated by them, but to strive harder to overcome. Given me a love for knowledge and friendship of others. A desire to live a positive, constructive life. To live a well-rounded life—for career, family and friends."

In the foregoing comments, most of us can in all probability find some ideas, concepts and reflections of our own.

* * * * *

Where, oh where, are the grave old seniors of 1951? Are we really safe now in the wide, wide world? Or—conversely—will the wide, wide world be safe now in the hands of our generation? These questions cannot have answers that are filled with the same firm assurance that enables us to present our Class statistics as immutable truth. Perhaps one of our classmates was closer than any of us to whatever the truth is when he said that his Princeton background was . . . "like taking off a carrier from a catapult — It's glamorous, but you dip down dangerously at first because you don't yet have enough speed. If you gun your engine and point up just enough not to stall out you'll make it. I can't tell whether I've started up yet or not."

Robert Pennybacker Accola, July 17, 1959

Bob came to Princeton from Phillips Exeter Academy. A major of Public and International Affairs at Princeton, he was active in Quadrangle Club.

Following a two-year stint in the Army (serving 15 months in Pusan, Korea), Bob entered the Harvard Graduate School in August, 1953 for advance study in International Affairs. At the close of the first semester, however, he had a complete change of heart, deciding to become an Instructor of Mathematics. He thereby commenced preparations at Boston University, then entered the Harvard Graduate School in Mathematics where he obtained M.A. and Ph.D. degrees as well as a teaching fellowship.

He served two years as a Benjamin Pierce Instructor of Mathematics at Harvard and is presently on the faculty at Brown University as an Assistant Professor of Mathematics. While his teaching duties take most of his time, Bob has found time to have had two articles accepted for publication in mathematical journals and to enjoy hiking in the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

Woody is a graduate of Deerfield Academy. At Princeton he majored in Music and was active in Campus Club. He was also President of the Glee Club.

After graduating with high honors in Music from Princeton, Woody then took an entirely different tack. He enrolled in the Harvard Business School, graduating from there with an M.B.A. degree in 1953. Thereafter, he served as Lieutenant (j.g.) with the Coast Guard for three years.

Although he highly values the training accorded him by the Harvard Business School, his intrinsic love of music once again beckoned him back into the fold. Thus, he returned to Harvard for graduate work in Music. While there he distinguished himself as conductor of the Harvard Freshman Glee Club and assistant Choirmaster of the Memorial Church, as well as being placed in charge of music of the Harvard Divinity School. At present, Woody is teaching music at Amherst College where he also plays the organ and directs the Glee Club and Choir.

Ed came to Princeton from Lawrenceville School. He majored in History and was a member of Cloister Club. From 1951 to 1953, he served with the Marine Corps, attached to the 2nd Marine Air Wing.

Following his separation from military service, he joined the American Suppliers division of American Tobacco Company and is now a tobacco buyer, making the usual "tobacco swing" from Georgia in July to North Carolina in the fall and then back to Kentucky to finish up on the Burley markets in November.

This work leaves him time to manage his farms which are still his main love. The Alyeas live in the Blue Grass section of Kentucky on a farm where sheep and hogs make up the livestock and tobacco is the main cash crop. This past spring they completed the building of their new home and "now have room to offer lodging to any '51 member passing through the Blue Grass section of Kentucky."

Ed still plays golf and participates in all water sports at their cottage on Buggs Island Lake in North Carolina.

Bill graduated from Shady Side Academy in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania before coming to Princeton to earn his A.B. in Economics. He was active in Glee Club, Triangle Show, and Colonial Club.

The two years following Princeton Bill earned his M.B.A. at Harvard Business School. The summer of 1953 saw him touring Europe and the Middle East, part of which time was spent inspecting industrial plants abroad with a group of engineers from M.I.T.

In 1953 Bill went to Dallas, Texas and worked in the investment banking business, specializing in oil and gas securities. That year also he joined the Army and participated in a new Financial Management Program. With 19 other men he received specialized training at Ft. Benjamin Harrison, Indianapolis, Indiana before being assigned to Ft. Dix, New Jersey. After a year there, Bill was sent to the Pentagon and was assigned to the field of strategic intelligence. He left the service a 1st Lieutenant in 1957.

Since 1958 Bill has been with his present firm, specializing in international trade and finance. Recently he obtained his LL.B. from Georgetown Law Center. He is also a graduate student (international finance) at the School for Advanced International Studies of the Johns Hopkins University.

Bill believes himself to be the only '51er to have testified so far before a Senate Committee (Foreign Relations). He testified in regard to a study which, as a consultant, he had made of the U. S. Mutual Security Program. The study was also utilized by the Draper Committee.

A History major at Princeton, Tom was a member of Dial Lodge and came to Princeton from Portsmouth Priory School.

Following his graduation from Princeton, he served two years as an officer with the Army Artillery. After having survived the rigors of being a forward observer and an intelligence officer in combat, Tom came close to death with acute appendicitis on board ship returning to the States. He came out of "the Conflict" with a Bronze Star and the rank of 1st Lieutenant, and is presently a Captain in the Reserves.

Tom began his business career at the First National City Trust Company in New York City, then launched into the booking agent field by becoming associated with National Artists and the Lee Keedick Company.

He conducts an independent booking agency from his home. Representing such people as William O. Douglas and Bennett Cerf, he travels quite extensively throughout the Mid-West contacting colleges and clubs in that area.

David Crawford Barclay, October, 1956
Jeanne Leslie Barclay, July 17, 1958

Tim graduated from Scarsdale High School in New York. At Princeton he majored in Public Affairs in the Woodrow Wilson School. He was a member of Elm Club and Commodore of the Yacht Club.

The three years following graduation were spent as Engineering Officer aboard the USS McGOWAN (DD 678), which included action in Korea, a trip around the world and a good-will tour of Northern Europe. He was discharged as a Lieutenant (j.g.) in time to sail as navigator in the 1954 Bermuda Race aboard the academy yawl Lively of which Bud Foulke '52 was skipper. They won the Navy trophy as top service academy boat.

In the fall of 1954 Tim became a physics and math instructor at Darrow School, New Lebanon, New York. He reports that; "as physics instructor I learned physics; as ski coach I learned to ski." In the fall of 1958 Tim changed schools. At Boston's Commonwealth School he helped start a brand-new school in the city—a city, co-ed day school. He still teaches science, math and sports—and still loves the work. In 1959 he received his Ed.M. from the Harvard School of Education.

Among Tim's hobbies he lists tennis, sailing, skiing and bird watching. He also has built boats, including a blue jay and a 28 foot auxiliary sloop.

Bill graduated from Penn Charter School in Philadelphia. He earned an A.B. in History at Princeton, was a member of Tower Club, helped run WPRU for a couple of years, headed the Outing Club for one year, and helped organize Campus Unitarian Group.

He does free lance feature writing and photography for regional newspapers and magazines, with "an occasional stab" at the national market. He also does work for the State of New Hampshire, for post cards, calendars, and publicity publications. In the winter he is Assistant Manager at Mt. Sunapee ski area. In the summer he rents housekeeping cabins and performs assorted tasks all over the countryside for a local post card company. Bill drives some 25,000 miles a year producing features and photos.

Bill happened upon his career by way of newspaper reporting in Denver (1952-53), teaching in a New Hampshire high school (1954-55), writing with Western Ways Features in Tucson, Arizona (1956-57), ski patrolling one winter at Mt. Sunapee (1957-58), and strong inclinations to "always end up back in New Hampshire." He likes the independence of action and highly stimulating variety of his work, but hopes to ultimately find time for some family and community life, which so far have fallen completely by the wayside.

Bill was graduated from the Solebury School in New Hope, Pennsylvania. At Princeton he majored in History, was a member of Colonial Club, Republican Club, and on the advertising board of the Nassau Sovereign.

Following graduation, Bill spent three and on-half years with the Army Military Intelligence. He studied Russian in Monterey, California for a year and then served at a small outpost on the East German border. In 1956 he was a graduate student at Oxford University, where he met his future wife, decided to forsake the academic world and "start earning a living."

He went to work on a new weekly newspaper, the Monadnock Ledger in Jaffrey, New Hampshire, the first photo-offset paper in the state. He resigned in January of 1958 to accept a job as feature writer and reporter for the Keene, New Hampshire Evening Sentinel. Concurrently he wrote for A.P., did some free-lance public relations work, and tried some "creative writing."

In December of 1958 he made another change and became vice-president and editor of the Richard R. Smith Co., Inc., a small book-publishing firm. He bought a controlling interest and was elected president in February of 1959. The company has a fairly wide variety of titles, but intends to emphasize increasingly books with a New England background.

Bill has served on campaign committees for gubernatorial and congressional candidates (Republican). He has also done public service work in art in addition to being member of various historical and antiquarian societies.

Doc graduated from Deerfield Academy and came to Princeton to earn his B.S. in Chemical Engineering. He was Treasurer of Prospect Club and a member of the Glee Club.

With service (Infantry 1945-46) completed, Doc went to work for General Aniline and Film Corporation in Easton, Pennsylvania. Its Chemical Engineering Research Division then organized, folded a year later.

In 1952 Doc joined his present employer, a subsidiary of Phillips Petroleum Company, in Bartlesville, Oklahoma, where he helped develop a process for manufacturing a new high-density polyethylene. Next Doc helped get a plant started in Houston, Texas, and then followed the development of this new plastic, trademark "MARLEX," one step further by moving to his present position in the Plastics Sales Division. He is presently Sales Service and Development Engineer, in which capacity he assists customers and develops new applications for MARLEX.

Much of Doc's time goes into his family, his church and his job of Secretary-Treasurer with a local Republican organization. Frequent business trips and many local activities break the monotony. Doc reports that he feels "very fortunate."

A Biology major at Princeton, Stan was a member of Elm Club, played J.V. football and was well-known for his Dixieland Jazz Band activities.

He obtained his M.A. from Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in June, 1955 and immediately afterward became associated with St. Luke's Hospital in New York. At St. Luke's he served out his four-year internship, became assistant resident and finally was appointed Chief Resident Physician and Frances H. Zabriskie Fellow in Medicine. While at St. Luke's, he also served as Acting Medical Director of St. Luke's Convalescent Hospital at Greenwich, Connecticut; as Assistant Director of the Department of Medicine at St. Luke's in New York City; and developed an embryonic private practice in Internal Medicine. Quite recently, he served as an instructor in Medicine at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons and is a member of such societies as the American Federation for Clinical Research, New York Diabetes Society, and New York Academy of Sciences. A great number of his articles about heart disease and diabetes have appeared in popular magazines and he has conducted much research work in these two diseases. Stan is now a Captain in the U. S. Army Medical Corps.

Throughout all of his medical career Stan has continued to be active in many Dixieland jazz bands. He became leader of the Intensely Vigorous Jazz Band which as recently as the Spring of 1959 was booked for an engagement at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City.

CApital 3-3465

Married: Norma J. Canales, July 4, 1960

Ted came to Princeton from the Taft School in Watertown, Connecticut and earned his A.B. in History. He played hockey, and was a member of Colonial Club and the Triangle Club, was active in Theatre Intime and on the Nassau Sovereign.

Having completed his service obligations before entering Princeton, Ted went to work as Acting-Director of the University of Michigan Expedition to the Near East for about three years. Based in Bagdad, Iraq, he also taught school in rural native schools for two years in the Kurdish areas of the Zegros Mountains.

On his way home in 1954 he stopped in England and purchased an Arabian stallion. The following year he entered Colorado A & M "as world's oldest freshman" and received his B.S. in agriculture, majoring in animal husbandry, in 1957.

With three horses and two coonhounds Ted settled in Virginia to write and produce a farm radio show until asked to join TV's Omnibus staff as feature editor. Subsequently he went to work for J. Walter Thompson as TV copywriter on Ford and Pan American accounts.

He moved to Vermont in 1959 to head the Development Department for the State of Vermont. The department is responsible for industrial development, agricultural products promotion, recreation-industry promotion, state public relations, and the quarterly, Vermont Life. Ted also serves on a number of boards and commissions related to his position of Commissioner of Development.

Ted wants his friends to know that if they can't locate a plant in Vermont "to at least stop in to see Norma, myself and the animals."

Bob came to Princeton from Loomis School in Windsor, Connecticut and earned his A.B. in Psychology. He was a member of Tiger Inn, participated in Club Ice Hockey and Bowling, and graduated cum laude.

A year after leaving Princeton, Bob received his M.A. in English from the University of Michigan. Unable to find a good college teaching position he worked as a lumberjack in the Northwest during the warm months and in the Texas oil fields during the cold. September of 1953 saw Bob an instructor of English at the University of Idaho. He remained there for two years, but then decided to earn a Ph.D. while teaching at the University of New Mexico. At present the degree hinges only on his dissertation regarding Twentieth Century fiction. During 1957-58 Bob worked as a Field Manager for a publishing firm while his wife finished her last year in college, and then won a Fulbright award to study modern Italian literature in Florence during the following school year.

Presently Bob teaches at the principal (of six extension centers) for Indiana University. He hopes to leave the Mid-West for Albuquerque, New Mexico in the near future and build his own home there.

Bill came from Brooklyn Technical High School to Princeton for his B.S. in Geological Engineering. A member of Campus Club, he lists his primary undergraduate activity as "got married."

Having been in the Army prior to Princeton, Bill entered graduate school at the University of Illinois in September of 1951. He received his M.S. in geology in 1952 and became Geologist for the Geological Survey, Providence, Rhode Island for three and one half years during which time he studied ground-water resources of Rhode Island and published four reports.

From May of 1956 to September of 1959, Bill was Geological Engineer for General Electric Company, Hanford Atomic Products Operation, Richland, Washington. He was in charge of geohydrological research concerning ground disposal of liquid radioactive wastes. The results of this research were published by American Geophysical Union, American Society of Civil Engineers, General Electric Company and U.S.A.C.E. The papers were presented at the International Symposium on Radioactive Wastes, Monaco and the University of California at Berkeley.

Since September of 1958 Bill has been Chief Geohydrologist for the Frank E. Basil Company. His duties entail exploration and development of ground-water resources in Iran, Turkey and Pakistan for the U. S. Corps of Engineers and the Military Assistance Programs for these countries.

Married: Emily Winifred Bruner, June 20, 1959

Prior to Princeton, Joe attended Wyoming Seminary, Kingston, Pennsylvania. He received an A.B. in Economics, was active in Campus Club, Orange Key and the Nassau Sovereign.

After graduation Joe became one of the small Princeton contingent in the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, where part of his training consisted of a summer on the cardiology wards in Edinburgh, Scotland. At Penn he was on the Student Government, Class Officer and fraternity President. His internship was at the Polyclinic Hospital in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania where he stayed on briefly as resident in medicine. Late in 1956 Joe went on a two-year tour of duty as a Captain with the Air Force and served as a public health officer on Okinawa. He reports that he saw a good deal of the Far East and considers the time over there well spent. Once out of uniform, he commenced residency in neurology in Boston and was recently promoted to Chief Resident.

After three years in Boston, Joe and his wife would like to go to England, "as sort of icing on the cake," to take a year of Neurology at the National Institute at Queens Square. He has not yet decided whether he will return to Northeastern Pennsylvania (where he has a farm on which he designed and built a country home), or to Harrisburg, Pennsylvania for private practice, or to enter the field of academic medicine.

Bob came to Princeton from the James Madison High School in Brooklyn, New York to earn his A.B. in the Woodrow Wilson School. He belonged to Prospect Club, Phi Beta Kappa, was President of Hillel and graduated summa cum laude.

More than three years were spent by Bob in the Navy at a Lieutenant (j.g.). After receiving his LL.B. from Harvard Law School in 1957 Bob joined the law firm of Senator Edward J. Speno (N. Y. State Senate). It was a busy, general practice with emphasis on zoning work, at which Bob spent about two and one-half years before establishing his own practice. Self-employed since November of 1959, Bob's practice consists primarily of real estate and negligence cases. He recently completed an article on real estate syndication for the Nassau County Bar Association magazine and hopes to continue writing in this field.

His evenings are taken up with Navy Reserve, Pythians, Democratic politics, Rotary and similar activities. Trying to get personally involved in real estate investment, Bob has recently purchased 36 acres of land eight minutes from Nassau Hall on which he would like to build garden apartments. Bob would love to return to Princeton and, with an independent real estate income, run a general "gentleman's" law practice, while writing on the side.

Children: Barbara Josephine Bogle, September 2, 1957

Jean Sherrerd Bogle, September 22, 1958

John C. Bogle, Jr., November 2, 1959

A graduate of Blair Academy, Jack majored in Economics at Princeton and graduated with high honors. He was a member of Elm Club, and an associate editor of the Daily Princetonian.

Jack joined the Wellington organization after graduation, as a result of its President having read his senior thesis on "Investment Companies," and has been kept busy there ever since. He attended the Evening School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania for two years. He was made Assistant to the President in 1956 and elected to the Board of Directors in 1960. The New York Times described Jack as "a perfect example of the type of person that will run the mutual fund industry in the years to come"—and he is working hard to live up to this description. He has written articles for The Investment Dealer's Digest, The Financial Analysts Journal, and a chapter in the book, Developing the Corporate Image (Scribners-1960).

Jack's most noteworthy achievement was his persuading Eve to marry him in 1956. Their three children are scheduled to be joined by a fourth in August, 1961, and the Bogles are also the proud possessors of a St. Bernard.

Jack has been kept busy due to the active nature of his three children, the gardening demands of their home in Gladwyne, and as a regular fund raiser for both Blair and Princeton.

Susan Wright Braham, June 30, 1960

Walter came to Princeton from Mercersburg Academy in Pennsylvania and earned his A.B. in History. He was on the Varsity Swimming Team, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and on the Tower Club Board of Directors. Walter was also recipient of the War Memorial Trophy in 1951.

In pursuit of his LL.B., he entered Harvard Law School upon being released from the Marine Corps in 1953. At Harvard he was Treasurer of Lincoln's Inn and Oralist of Casner Law Club. His first employment was with Reed, Ewing, Orr & Reed in the general practice of law in Beaver, Pennsylvania, an association which lasted until January of 1960. Then he accepted his present position as Associate with Kirkpatrick, Pomeroy, Lockhart & Johnson, a Pittsburgh law firm. Walter specializes in the tax litigation field, although still doing some general work. He considers the law firm the best in Pittsburgh and its future very bright.

Walter has worked for the library and solicited for the Boy Scouts and the United Fund. As co-leader of a Great Books discussion group, he has been able to read many of the books for which he was unable to find time at Princeton and under tutelage of his wife, he has learned something about modern art. Walter's principal athletic love is golf and he reports that he will probably always be a second flight golfer but a devotee nonetheless.

Bud graduated from Valley Forge Military Academy before coming to Princeton and earning his A.B. in Economics. He was active in the Triangle Club and the Orange Key, and was secretary of Tower Club.

Shortly after graduation, Bud was called to active duty in the Army field artillery and reported to the artillery school at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, along with several other members of the class of 1951. When he had gained a detailed knowledge of artillery, the Army (naturally) sent him to teach basic infantry training at Ft. Knox, Kentucky, after which Bud toured Europe with a North Carolina National Guard field artillery battalion for sixteen months.

The Fall of 1953 found Bud at the University of Pennsylvania Law School, where he became a member and officer of the Sharswood Law Club and was active in moot court competition. An LL.B., a cram school and a bar exam led to work on trusts, estates and taxes with the Philadelphia law firm of Duane, Morris & Heckscher, and to the establishment of bachelor quarters in Bryn Mawr with Keith Schnebly.

Bud is now employed by Provident Mutual in their Legal Department and was recently made an officer of the company with the title of Assistant Counsel. He is a member of the Philadelphia, American and Pennsylvania bar associations, the Princeton Club of Philadelphia, for which he plays softball, and the Merion Cricket Club, where he manages to get in squash and tennis whenever possible.

At Princeton, Bob was a Basic Engineering major, was a member of Cannon Club, was on the Varsity Football team, on the Varsity Track team, received honors in engineering and a McGraw Engineering scholarship.

His career, however, was not destined to be in the engineering field. Following his graduation from Princeton, Bob decided to pursue the medical profession. He entered the Harvard Medical School where he was active in the Aesculapiad Club and Boylston Society, receiving his Medical Degree in 1956. Thereafter, he served his internship for one year at the Mary Hitchcock Memorial Hospital in Hanover, New Hampshire; in 1957 he joined the staff of the Massachusetts General Hospital as Pediatric Resident Physician; served on the Diplomatic National Board of Medical Examiners in 1957; obtained his Massachusetts medical license in 1958; became a teaching fellow at the Harvard Medical School (1958-1959); and received a Mead-Johnson Pediatric fellowship in 1958-1959.

An Army Captain on active duty, Bob is presently Assistant Chief of Pediatrics at Womach Army Hospital, but finds time to enjoy tennis, skiing, woodworking and reading.

Dave is a graduate of the Hotchkiss School and obtained both his A.B. and M.F.A. degrees at Princeton, where he majored in Architecture, was a member of Colonial Club, the 150 pound crew and the Orange Key.

Upon graduation, he worked for several architectural firms in New York and then joined Raymond Loewy Associates, industrial designers, in their Experimental Architecture Division and worked on U. S. Trade Fairs. Dave left Raymond Loewy Associates to practice on his own for a while, during which time he designed a large resort hotel in St. Croix, in the Virgin Islands, the Pavilion for the U. S. in the International Trade Fair of 1960, and several resort projects in St. Kitts, Nevis, St. Martins, and other Virgin Islands. He has now returned to Raymond Loewy Associates as Director of their office in Puerto Rico but still maintains his private practice there.

Aside from trying to convince people of the necessity for good design, Dave's present work includes projects in the restoration of Old San Juan, which he reports is very interesting and carries with it a sense of satisfaction.

Walter came to Princeton from Lamar High School in Houston, Texas for an A.B. in English. He participated in the Special Humanities Program, belonged to Ivy Club and the Triangle Club.

Upon graduation Walter went to Magdalen College in Oxford on a Rhodes Scholarship and took first class honors in English. The year 1954 Walter spent working as an ordinary seaman for a seismographic company, surveying the Gulf of Mexico bottom for a possible underwater oil-drilling operation. He took his seaman's pay to Europe where he worked as book reviewer for the London Spectator. He lived in London, Paris and Ibiza until the end of 1956, writing short stories, the first of which appeared in Harper's Bazaar in 1956.

From 1957 to 1959 Walter lived in New York, working as free-lance writer and occasionally as a night-club pianist. His book of short stories, The Poison Tree and other Stories (Houghton Mifflin, 1959) contains "The Dark Roots of the Rose" which is to be made into a movie by Hal Wallis. He called on Walter to write the script!

The 1959-60 school year saw Walter back at Princeton on the Hodder Fellowship, a non-teaching, writer-in-residence chair, working on a novel. Late 1960 plans called for a year as a Fellow of the American Academy in Rome, awarded by the American Academy of Arts and Letters.

Rouse Company, continuing his studies at the University at night. At the James W. Rouse Company, a mortgage banking firm, Dick began in the Legal Department but in 1957 he decided to close the chapter on all further legal pursuits and devote his entire time to the mortgage business.

Presently a Mortgage Officer with the firm, he handles residential mortgages throughout the entire States of Maryland and Delaware, obtaining FHA and VA loans for purchasers of new homes, dealing mostly with builders and real estate brokers.

Dick is very active in civic affairs. He works for the Red Cross - Community Chest drive; he is a member of the Baltimore Junior Chamber of Commerce and one of its Committee Chairmen; and is an active member of the Maryland National Guard with the rank of Captain. Golf and swimming in the summer and duck hunting and bird shooting in the winter take up the rest of his spare time.

Cris came to Princeton from William L. Dickinson High School in Jersey City. He belonged to Prospect Club, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and earned his A.B. in History, participating in the special humanities program.

Upon graduation Cris joined the staff of Princeton University Press and has been connected with them ever since.

He is currently the Advertising and Promotion Manager and is responsible for all the space advertising, direct mail advertising, and publicity of the Press's books. He is also manager of the International Book Export Group for the non-European areas of the world. The IBEG was formed in 1956 to promote books published by Columbia University Press, Cornell University Press, Harvard University Press, Princeton University Press, the Silver Burdett Company, the Van Nostrand Company, and Yale University Press in the Middle East, Asia, the Far East and Latin America.

In connection with his IBEG duties, Cris makes a round-the-world trip every other year. On these trips Cris talks to book importers, educators and government officials about their problem of importing more American educational books. Cris feels there is an "increasing hunger" for our books in the Asian Countries but high book prices, import license quotas and dollar shortages are hindering factors.

Cris has led panel discussion and lectured on "American Books Abroad," "Book Advertising in the Domestic Market" and "Book Publishing." He has also run the publicity for a candidate for mayor, managed a Little League team and has given a couple of panels on publicity and advertising for leadership programs in several local organizations.

George came to Princeton from Woodberry Forest in Virginia and earned his A.B. in Architecture. He was a member of Cottage Club, an engineer and announcer for WPRU and participated in freshman football, freshman golf, and JV football.

After graduation he worked in an architect's office for a few months and found he "had no talent for architecture," and, after a brief stint with the Marines, decided on taking law in September of 1952 at the University of Virginia's Law School. During the 1952-53 winter, however, he spent several months in the hospital, recuperating in Canada, subsequently working in oil fields and on city planning in Edmonton, Canada.

In August of 1953 George returned to the University of Virginia Law School, working summers in a Virginia Beach law office. He received his LL.B in June of 1957. During his law school days he was active as Managing Editor of the Virginia Law Weekly, and a member of a Legal Research Group. After working one year for another lawyer, George struck out on his own and now has a very busy general practice. Since then he was in a severe auto accident and broke a leg skiing, which, however, have not kept him from learning to fly and being active in Jaycees and is chairman of a committee working to get a local hospital and airfield.

Chet came to Princeton from Phillips Exeter Academy and earned his A.B. in the Woodrow Wilson S.P.I.A. program. He was a member of Key & Seal Club, the Tigertones and served as secretary of the Glee Club.

The year '51-'52 was spent at Harvard Law School with summers as a ranger in Yellowstone National Park. In September of 1952 Chet enlisted in the Navy, "at the strong encouragement of his draft board." After attending O.C.S. he was assigned shore duty in Washington, followed by service as gunnery officer on the Norfolk-based destroyer Rowe.

Once a civilian, he returned to Harvard for his last two years of law school, where he was President of the Marshall Club, Treasurer of the Bull & Bear Club and a member of Lincoln's Inn Society. In 1958 Chet received his LL.B. and accepted a position as Associate with Bell, Boyd, Marshall & Lloyd, a Chicago law firm. This firm has about 40 lawyers, engages in general practice, primarily corporate. Most of the time Chet has been doing corporate litigation and antitrust work, but has assisted in the writing of articles in the Antitrust Bulletin (1959 and 1960). Memberships are held in the Chicago, Illinois State, American Bar Associations and in the American Society of International Law.

Politically Chet has been active in his local Republican ward organization, and in conducting some workshop programs to stimulate generally the interest of citizens in politics. He has also been active in fund-raising campaigns and in the Princeton Schools and Scholarships Committee. Chet gathers once a week with his singing group for "billiards, beer and balladry."

Jack came to Princeton from Deerfield Academy in Massachusetts for his A.B. in History. He belonged to Cottage Club, was on the Freshman and JV Soccer teams, participated in Orange Key and the Creative Arts program and graduated cum laude.

During his two years' service with the Navy, Jack acted as Navigation and Legal Officer for two fleet oilers with the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean, being discharged with the rank of Lieutenant (j.g.). Shortly after his discharge, he was awarded a Fulbright Scholarship to study history and philosophy at a Graduate Institute founded in Naples by the late Italian philosopher, Benedetto Croce.

After completing his studies at the Croce Institute, Jack founded the American Studies Center of Naples, with the cooperation of the Italo-American Association of Naples and the United States Information Service. He remained at the Center as director for three and a half years, developing the institution to the enrollment of 550 Italian students with a wide range of activities, emphasizing a program of instruction in the English language for Italian students. Jack also organized a program of courses, seminars and lectures in American civilization for Italians. The Center also oriented Italian Fulbright scholars about to depart for American universities.

At present Jack directs the activities of the Villa Vergiliana at Cuma, a residence for scholars, writers, and artists in Italy, which conducts a summer school of classical studies. He reports that he has an unusual hobby, that of raising and domesticating a baby lion, which, at the moment, is "calm as a lamb."

Lee Curtis Denby, September 4, 1958

Peter is a graduate of Millbrook School, Millbrook, New York. Following his graduation from Princeton, where he majored in Economics, was a member of Colonial Club and Chairman of Nassau Sovereign, Peter attended Harvard Law School where he obtained his LL.B. degree.

Prior to joining Reed, Smith, Shaw & McClay, he was associated with the New York law firm of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Sunderland & Kiendl, working for a time in New York City and later transferring to Cedarhurst, Long Island. Here he practiced primarily general corporate, corporate finance, and international private development contracts (concessions from foreign governments to corporations for development of natural resources). During this period, he served as a Vice Chairman of the Downtown Committee of the Community Service Society, a 107-year-old private charitable institution.

The Denbys have recently purchased a large old house in Sewickley, a suburb of Pittsburgh, and when the opportunity arises, they enjoy riding, golf and skiing.

Chick came to Princeton from Lawrenceville for his A.B. in Architecture. He was active in Cap & Gown Club, Freshman Soccer, Tiger Magazine, and Advertising Council (President).

Upon graduation Chick was called to active duty with the Army Field Artillery, and the "Princeton Club" at Ft. Sill, Oklahoma. He spent a year at the front in Korea, receiving the Meritorious Service Medal, and came home a 1st Lieutenant after two years.

The next six years were spent at the First National Bank in Anniston, Alabama, eventually as assistant vice president. Chick also held "a multitude of non-paying jobs," such as Board Member of Chamber of Commerce, YMCA, Boy Scouts, Rotary, United Fund, church and hospital and was selected Anniston's "Young Man of 1955."

In 1960 Chick became the head of a young, local company manufacturing sporting goods and toys, which he had helped organize. The firm's outlook is bright, and Chick is enjoying "the work and the challenge."

Homer graduated from The Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, Connecticut before coming to Princeton and earning his A.B., with honors, in Economics. He garnered class numerals in 150 lb. Football, played Varsity Tennis, was Manager of the Student Refrigerator Agency and a member of Colonial Club.

Immediately upon graduation, Homer joined the Marines and served two years as an officer. Early in 1953, a civilian again, he traveled to Europe, of which he saw 4,000 miles on a second-hand motorcycle. Returning to the States he spent two years at Stanford Graduate School of Business Administration and obtained his M.B.A. While there he was Treasurer of the Class of 1955.

The next four years Homer spent in the Comptroller's Department Program of the Standard Oil Company of California. After completing the training program, he worked as an accountant for a year and then entered the field of engineering economics. As a part-time business activity, some business associates and Homer started a real estate development company in the spring of 1959, which thus far has earned little profit but good experience. That December he went to work for Schwabacher & Co., an underwriting and merger firm, where he is an Investment Banker at present.

Homer has been chairman of the Schools Committee for the Princeton Alumni Association of Northern California. Tennis, skiing and camping are his favorite sports.

Ken graduated from Lawrenceville School and came to Princeton for his A.B. in Economics. He served on the Nassau Sovereign, was a member of the Liberal Union and Key and Seal Club and graduated magna cum laude.

Upon leaving Princeton Ken was called to active duty in the Army Artillery, was rather seriously injured in Korea (October 1952), and spent three years in Walter Reed Hospital. He left the service a 1st Lieutenant in October of 1955, wearing the Silver Star, Bronze Star, and Purple Heart with oak leaf cluster. Breaking his hip shortly after leaving the hospital laid Ken up for another 18 months.

During the latter part of 1958 and 1959 he worked "sporadically" in the family warehouse and storage business when his health permitted.

Lately Ken has also engaged in various literary activities, writing reviews for Jubilee Magazine, writing fiction, and teaching occasionally at Columbia.

Literature began as a hobby while Ken was in the hospital and it has greatly "swallowed up" his other interests, except collecting paintings.

Willy graduated from Shady Side Academy in Pittsburgh before coming to Princeton and earning his A.B. in Politics. He was Vice President of Terrace Club, active in Marching and Concert Band, as well as the Glee Club.

The Navy utilized Willy's talents for three years upon graduation. He became an officer aboard the USS New, DDE 818, saw three cruises to the Mediterranean and participated in NATO exercises. Presently Willy is Executive Officer of Surface Division 3-8 (New Haven) in the Naval Reserve.

In 1954 Willy joined the General Electric business training course in Syracuse, New York, but after one year of "bookkeeping" transferred to GE's manufacturing training program in Johnson City, New York. After three years in the program, and several location moves, Willy changed employment and went to work for Olin Mathieson in New Haven, Connecticut. Willy's Division manufactured nuclear components. He was Superintendent of the Fuel Alloy Shop. He is now Manager of Production for Rowland Products, Inc., of Kensington, Conn., manufacturers of plastic spectacle frames.

Most of his free time has been spent on Navy Reserve activities, boat building, sailing and tennis. He also manages to find some time to work on the Schools Committee and Annual Giving.

An Economics major at Princeton, Sandy was a member of the Crew, Orange Key, and of Ivy Club.

After graduating from Princeton, he joined the Navy where he was assigned to an Atlantic Fleet destroyer out of Norfolk, Virginia for about three years. He then went to Korea with the 7th Fleet, and ended his tour assigned to a shore unit. Following his discharge in December 1954, he joined Smith, Barney & Co., a Wall Street investment banking and brokerage house, where he spent two years setting up a new IBM punch-card system to handle all the firm's accounting and service function. During this time he attended the New York University graduate school at night, but became too deeply involved in daily business affairs to finish. In the fall of 1957 he was offered a position with J. P. Morgan & Co. which he accepted. The J. P. Morgan Company and Guaranty Trust Company recently merged and for the past two and one-half years he has been engaged in setting up an I.B.M. system for this firm.

The Halseys now own their own home on three and one-half acres in Locust, and spend their leisure time fishing off the Florida Keys. Sandy is active in local fund raising drives and is President of the local Toastmasters Club.

Dick came to Princeton from Phillips Exeter Academy in New Hampshire for his A.B. in Sociology. He was active in Swimming, Cheerleading, and belonged to Tower Club.

Upon graduation Dick joined the Navy, became a Lieutenant (j.g.), served aboard cruisers and amphibian forces (mostly in communications), and was "finally put ashore in 1954."

After sales training with a wire and cable manufacturer, Dick spent two years in the field selling in Alabama, Mississippi and central Tennessee. Then he returned to the home office staff and managed the inventory control system. In June of 1960 Remington Rand employed Dick as Inventory Control Manager. His full title is Manager Sales Production Coordination and Inventories.

Dick's outside activities include Tower Club Board of Governors, Annual Giving, Community Chest, and Young Republican Club. He tries to get in a round of golf once in a while and a little skiing.

"C.J." graduated from Lawrenceville before coming to Princeton to study politics. He was active in Whig-Clio and Public Affairs Forum.

Having served in the Army in pre-Princeton days, "C.J." bought a "defunct" service station on the New Jersey Turnpike in 1951. After that road opened, he sold 100,000 gallons of gasoline a month and increased his employee force to twelve.

The following year "C.J." formed Heathcliff, Inc., a home-building firm operating at a $1,000,000 yearly gross for six years. As President of the company, he directed the construction of more than 200 homes in seven northern New Jersey communities. In November of 1958 he started a new career as Sales Engineer for a firm engaged in dust control and elimination of air pollution. He is presently in charge of all sales in Northeast United States.

"C.J." bucked the local political machine in Oradell, New Jersey in April of 1959, getting elected Republican County Committeeman. The following January he was commissioned by General Robert Wood Johnson (Johnson & Johnson) to study the Young Conservative movement in England. He spent a month in England and has lectured on the subject since his return. In February of 1960 "C.J." became Bergen County Campaign Manager for Republican Senatorial Candidate Robert Morris, who raked in 23,300 votes in the County.

Daniel Coleman Hewitt, May 8, 1958

Arch came to Princeton from Phillips Exeter Academy, Exeter, N. H. He was a member of Quadrangle Club, St. Paul's Society, Glee Club and the Golf Team.

Upon graduation from Princeton, he was assigned mission work at Weirton, W. Va., as lay minister during the summer of 1951. That fall he entered the Virginia Theological seminary where he became class representative for missionary society and was awarded a prize for improvement in preaching. While a student, he spent his summers receiving clinical training and field work. He attained his B.D. in 1954.

Arch's first position was that of executive director of the Peterkin Conference Center in Romney, W. Va. and deacon-in-charge of St. Stephen's. Romney and Emmanuel, Moorfield. Within six months he was ordained to the priesthood and remained in that part of the country for more than four years. Upon the retirement of one bishop and the succession of another Arch's responsibilities increased to varying heights depending upon the availability of nearby Episcopal clergy and at one time was Dean of the Eastern Convention representing eight counties of the Diocese of West Virginia.

In 1958 Arch left Romney to assist his brother-in-law in Mobile, Alabama, where he is Curate. He reports that they have "the best possible relationship" in their team ministry. Arch thinks that he is obtaining experience in this thriving parish that will soon enable him to be on his own.

Ham graduated from the Darrow School and came to Princeton for undergraduate work in Politics. He belonged to Dial Lodge and was President of the Free Enterprise Club.

Having met his service obligations prior to Princeton, Ham went on to law school "but discovered himself as a sales and market research man." He is now in charge of Public Relations and Research for d-con company. This work involves extensive travel and Ham says he has friends in every state now except Nevada. The phase of his work that he likes best is sales and market research and he is "fascinated" by new products and applications.

He also operates a 600-acre farm in the South and does well running it "most of the time, via the mail, from dusty Broadway." Once he bailed out his farm operator for shooting a neighbor who made his own brew. Aside from farming, he has done well raising funds for several organizations, particularly for the Heart Fund.

Ham is a member of an outdoor fishing club but also finds time for skiing, skin diving and camping.

Dave came to Princeton from Syracuse Central High School for his A.B. in physics. He was a member of Cannon Club and Phi Beta Kappa and graduated summa cum laude.

From Princeton he went directly to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Graduate School, being awarded a National Science Foundation Fellowship and in 1954 he received his Ph.D. in physics.

In 1954 Dave joined the General Electric Research Laboratory in Schenectady in a program of nuclear physics research. He found the place "a businessman's conception of a scientific playground" but left to join the Laboratory for Nuclear Science at M.I.T. in 1957. The first six months Dave spent at Brookhaven National Laboratory, then went on to Boston. He commuted to the Radiation Laboratory at Berkeley, California throughout the 1958 summer to pursue an experiment there.

Dave is particularly interested in the reactions of the "elementary particles." He feels he has done some creditable work and has published a few technical papers. To Dave his research work is a worthy challenge — "by turns interesting, perhaps exciting, often frustrating, but never dull."

Lance graduated from Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, Connecticut before coming to Princeton for his A.B. in Architecture. He was active in Pistol Team (president), Nassau Herald, Orange Key and Quadrangle Club.

Having served in the Air Force as a Corporal prior to Princeton, Lance joined American Houses as a trainee upon graduation. He ended up selling to builders, was disenchanted and left the firm in 1954. He became a member of an Arctic Tundra expedition to capture muskox calves for the Institute of Northern Agricultural Research. Life magazine, Omnibus TV show and a motion-picture feature captured the highlights of the expedition.

Upon his return Lance "worked for a couple of Long Island's biggest home-building developers" for two years before joining Time, Inc. on the Architectural Forum, where he is presently an Advertising Sales Representative. His territory includes "everything in and between Baltimore and Miami."

Camping and skiing hold much fascination for Lance—Sun Valley has spoiled Eastern skiing for him forever. Recently he spent three weeks in the mountains of the Yukon seeking caribou calves; but his party found the animals too elusive and had to settle for studying and photographing this remote region.

Skip graduated from Akron North High School in Ohio, and came to Princeton to earn an A.B. in Architecture. He was a member of Tower Club, the Outing Club and the Camera Club and played JV football.

After graduation Skip worked for two years as an architectural draftsman before entering military service in 1953. He was in the Marine Corps for a few months, but then changed to the Coast Guard Reserve until early in 1957, when he was discharged as a Lieutenant.

Upon release from active duty, Skip returned to Akron, Ohio and resumed his architectural training, managing to sandwich a year of study towards a professional degree between periods of employment with local architects, resulting in his Bachelor of Architecture degree from Kent State University in June of 1958.

In September of 1958 Skip moved his family to Eugene, Oregon. There he carried on graduate work at the School of Architecture and Allied Arts of the University of Oregon, where he had a part-time teaching fellowship. Within two years he received his M.A. in architectural history.

Presently Skip works for an architectural firm in Eugene, Oregon. Future plans call for practicing architecture there.

Murray entered Princeton from Episcopal Academy, Overbrook, Pennsylvania. He majored in Biology, was a member of Dial Lodge, and was active in several student organizations.

After graduation he attended the University of Pennsylvania Medical School and received his M.D. in 1955. He left Penn for one year of internship at Presbyterian Hospital in Philadelphia and then returned to Penn to complete a three-year residency in Radiology. Murray served one year on the Diagnostic Radiology Staff of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital and also instructed medical students in Radiology. He is now on active duty as a Captain in the Army.

Murray reports that, aside from being on the staff at the University Hospital, he also spent a brief time there as a patient when a truck completely demolished the back of the car in which he was riding. Fortunately, he escaped with minor injuries. When not pursuing his medical duties, he enjoys camping, fishing, travel, and photography.

Charlie graduated from Asheville School in North Carolina before attending Princeton for his A.B. in Economics. The Glee Club, the Triangle Club and Tower Club occupied his extra time on campus.

Since leaving Princeton he has attended the University of Geneva, Switzerland, the University of Wisconsin and the University of Michigan. His graduate education was interrupted by four years in the Navy as a pilot flying jet fighters. He attained the rank of Lieutenant (j.g.).

Charlie spent a year in Washington, D. C., where he organized and produced his "only claim to fame—Washington's version of Triangle—the Hexagon Club." He believes the venture was a success, as a recent clipping from Washington notes that the first four shows made over $17,000 for various charities.

From Washington Charlie went to Europe where he met Lee in a French class in Geneva. Result: "neither one knows any French." They set up housekeeping in Milwaukee and are now teaching in a small country school, where they enjoy skiing two or three times a week.

Bob graduated from Lawrenceville School in New Jersey. At Princeton he earned his A.B. in economics, was a member of Tower Club, Orange Key, Whig Clio, S.O.T.S., the Advertising Forum, and the Tiger board.

From March of 1952 to July of 1955 Bob saw duty with the Navy as a Lieutenant. Returning to school, he received his M.B.A. with honors from the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance and Commerce.

In 1956 he accepted a position with Arthur D. Little, Inc., a management consulting firm in Cambridge, of which he is now Marketing Staff Consultant. His work keeps him "on the road" a good bit of the time and he estimates that he travels about 125,000 miles each year working with client firms. This gives him an excellent opportunity to keep in touch with former classmates, but being away from home "raises havoc" with his golf game.

Despite the presence of "that unmentionable university" in Cambridge, Bob has grown to enjoy New England life immensely. He has managed to keep the old school tie waving on the Class Council and through work on the AG campaign.

Married: Myra Laura Baeder, December 20, 1952

Child: Geoffrey Palmer James, October 2, 1958

Jud graduated from the Kent School in Connecticut. At Princeton he earned his A.B. in Politics, was a member of Tower Club and Theatre Intime.

Until 1955 Jud worked for Mona Lisa Foundations, Inc. in Allentown, Pennsylvania. He worked himself up from trainee to Assistant to the President but decided after about four years that the foundation business was not for him.

Early in 1955 he joined the Overseas Division of Proctor & Gamble, took six months of sales training in Philadelphia and was sent to Toronto as an Assistant Brandman in P&G's Canadian Advertising Department. Late the same year he was promoted to Brandman, and working in various brands of increasing importance. Two years later he was again promoted, this time to Associate Brand Promotion Manager, responsible for a group of about eight brands.

In June of 1959 Jud became Brand Promotion Manager, responsible for one-half of the company's brands. The following October saw him transferred to Paris in the capacity of Assistant Advertising Manager, permitting him the advantages of a Paris suburbanite.

Freeman graduated from The Hill School in Pottstown, Pennsylvania before coming to Princeton to earn his A.B. in Economics. He was Personnel Director of Daily Princetonian, Undergraduate Columnist of Princeton Alumni Weekly, and member of Key and Seal.

Six months were spent with the Central Intelligence Agency in Washington, D. C. before Freeman joined the Army for two years. He saw service in Okinawa and Japan. Freeman took his discharge as a Corporal in Tokyo and went on a six months' trip west around the world, writing a weekly column for a Savannah newspaper.

In 1955 he entered the Savannah investment banking firm of Johnson, Lane, Space and Co., Inc., becoming an Assistant Vice President in 1959 and a stockholder the following year.

Freeman is Executive Vice President of the local symphony orchestra, takes an active part in preserving "architecturally meritorious buildings," has been very active in United Fund campaigns, is interested in Bethesda Home for Boys (oldest U. S. orphanage), and serves as Deacon and sometime Sunday School teacher of his church.

He is also Director of two companies — a bank, which is not growing; and a beachfront motel, which is shrinking. Freeman reports that "while my classmates produced children" he was chosen Savannah Young Man of the Year and One of the Five Outstanding Young Men in Georgia (1958).

Ted came to Princeton from Gulf Coast Military Academy, Gulfport, Mississippi. He majored in the Woodrow Wilson S.P.I.A., was active in freshman crew, Key & Seal Club, Triangle Shows, and the Orange Key.

Having served in the Army from 1943 to 1947 in France and Germany, Uncle Sam again utilized his services for three more years beginning in 1949. Having seen combat on his first tour, Ted was fortunately assigned on his second tour to "one of the most delightful cities in the world," Berlin.

Upon returning to civilian life in 1953 Ted worked for the Washington, D.C. Board of Trade, heading world trade activities. Two years later he became employed by Warren S. Lockwood, Inc., a foreign trade consulting firm. The first three years Ted remained in Washington, D. C., but since 1958 he has been in New York, his present location, and presently is Vice President and a Director of the company.

Bob came to Princeton from Culver Military Academy in Indiana and earned his A.B. in English. He was a member of Cottage Club, President of the Triangle Club, and Chairman of the Princeton Tiger.

After basic training and a few brief assignments, the Army put Bob to work on the Pacific edition of Stars and Stripes, with which he became Korean Bureau Chief, in Seoul. Following the service Bob went on a honeymoon to Spain and stayed a year, writing a book on Korean war prisoners, working as a "stringer" for TIME-LIFE International, and turning out one article for The American Weekly with his wife. The Jennings also traveled extensively through Italy and the rest of Europe.

Back in New York in 1955 he worked several months for Parade magazine, which included some by-line pieces and a cover story on Marcel Marceau. The following year he joined TIME as Milestones and Miscellany writer, became TV-Radio Editor, and then went west to handle Show Business chores (along with occasional Business, Music, Art pieces). The June 1960 Playboy had one of Bob's articles on Sinatra and his clan (pseudonym: Robert Legaré). Anyone remembering quiz shows may recall one of Bob's stories in the New York Times Magazine.

At present Bob is working on his first Hollywood novel and reports that he still plays bad tennis, worse poker and loses at the track.

Bob came to Princeton from the Peddie School in Hightstown, New Jersey for his A.B. in English, which he earned in a special program in the humanities.

He belonged to Campus Club, was editorial co-chairman of the Daily Princetonian, and a member of the Undergraduate Council. He was awarded highest honors in the humanities and high honors in English, won the Manners prize in creative writing and made Phi Beta Kappa.

After graduation Bob returned to study English at Princeton Graduate School on a Class of 1873 Fellowship. In May of 1954 he enlisted in the Coast Guard and following some "rough" duty on a cutter and a search-and-rescue patrol boat, left the service as a Lieutenant in 1955.

After some work for the Department of Agriculture, he was appointed to the Foreign Service in January of 1956. Then followed brief periods with the Foreign Service Institute and the International Cooperation Administration.

In July of 1958 Bob was assigned as Second Secretary at the American Embassy in Amman, Jordan, where he arrived a few days before the Iraqi Revolution and "had a very exciting time." He expects his next assignment to be Beirut, Lebanon, to pursue 18 months of intensive Arabic language and specialized training.

Bob enjoys writing and all varieties of sports and hobbies.

Lou came to Princeton from Rye High School in New York for his A.B. in Economics. He was President of Dial Lodge, President of I.A.A. and a member of the Undergraduate Council.

From graduation to 1957 Lou sold insurance for Alexander & Alexander in New York. During this time he lived in bachelor apartments in Manhattan and Brooklyn. John Titman is reported to have been the "landlord" of the Brooklyn apartment, which developed into a '51 dorm. Lou's chief interest at the time was squash at the Downtown A.C. Much of his time was spent on Class affairs, reunions and Annual Giving.

In 1957 Lou went to work for his present employer, Eurpac Service Company, a complete switch from the insurance business. Eurpac represents manufacturers selling to the American military forces overseas (PX stores and commissaries). His work involves travel to a number of European countries with Frankfurt/W. Germany as home base.

Lou reports that he has "managed" to stay single, which is evidently just as well in his type of job with so much traveling involved. He thinks that he will probably remain in Europe even if he does take "the plunge" since he doubts whether he could handle a commuter's life.

Bob came to Princeton from Culver Military Academy in Indiana. At Princeton he majored in Economics, was a member of Cannon Club, was Phi Beta Kappa, on the staff of the Nassau Sovereign, and graduated cum laude.

With service out of the way prior to Princeton, Bob attended Harvard Business School upon graduation and received his M.B.A. in 1953. He was a George F. Baker Scholar. During 1953-55 Bob did oil and gas exploring for Gulf in Oklahoma, from 1955 to 1960 for Carter Oil Company (Jersey affiliate) in Montana and since then for Eason Oil Company again in Oklahoma, mainly in the Rocky Mountain area.

He has almost finished writing a sexy western but doesn't want the Pulitzer Prize, just the money. Lack of same recently made him decide against running in the primary for the office of Senator — an undertaking he may yet accomplish. This desire to serve the country stems from his belief that he can do a better job than many now serving and that just sitting around and complaining won't accomplish anything.

Bob is ready to offer advice about the oil business and also some investment opportunities, but he warns, "I'm not infallible."

Fritz arrived at Princeton from New York City's Trinity School to earn his A.B. in English. He belonged to Prospect Club, Cross Country Varsity and won a Hibben Scholarship.

From Princeton Fritz went to Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine. He soon learned that pediatricians do not see many "crocks," — patients with imagined illnesses who make up a significant proportion of the internist's patient day. This realization steered him toward pediatrics, finding "children delightful to work with." His years at Johns Hopkins, which he calls his best, were "intensely intellectually stimulating, involving intimate work with researchers, patients with complex problems, and medical students."

In 1957 Fritz joined the Navy Medical Corps, and served a two-year tour as pediatrician at the Navy Academy in Annapolis. Presently he is taking his pediatric Specialty Boards and intends to return to Johns Hopkins to work in Pediatric Endocrinology — with a view to continue in academic medicine.

Married: Dorothy Wingate Green, October 16, 1948

Children: Nancy Wingate Lakeland, July 14, 1949

Peter Ashton Lakeland, December 18, 1958

Pete came to Princeton from Lawrenceville School for his A.B. in English. He belonged to Dial Lodge, participated in wrestling (freshman trophy), and 150 lb. football and graduated with honors.

Columbia University followed Princeton, resulting in an M.A. with honors in English and Comparative Literature. He taught school and coached the wrestling team in his home town high school for about four years while going to graduate school until he entered the foreign service in 1956. Since then he has had assignments to Bombay (vice consul) and New Delhi (Second Secretary of Embassy in the Political Section). Between Bombay and New Delhi, Pete was given a year of intensive training in the Hindi language, which he now speaks and reads with reasonable fluency.

Pete's main responsibilities are following the Communist Party of India, political developments in Prime Minister Nehru's home state of Uttar Pradesh (pop. c. 70 million), and the Jan Saugh (a Hindu conservative party). This keeps him busy in the office about 50-60 hours per week but the great number of social engagements (cocktail parties, dinners, teas, and receptions), which he has to attend are compensating factors.

Pete tries to play squash two or three times a week, devoting the rest of his time to his family and reading.

Shady Side Academy, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania graduated Dave to Princeton for his A.B. in History. He was active in Elm Club, President of Westminster Fellowship and President of Student Christian Association.

Upon graduation Dave stayed on to attend Princeton Theological Seminary for three years, receiving academic prizes in speech and preaching. He then received his B.D., and was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry. Next Dave took a year of clinical pastoral training in a Washington D.C.

mental hospital and prison, subsequently spending a year as a Probation Officer for the Juvenile Court of Fairfax County, Virginia.

In the fall of 1956 Dave took his family to Ecorse, Michigan, where he was instrumental in developing a more effective ministry in the community. The fall of 1958 found Dave as Pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian Church in East Detroit, which he reports is "small but growing." In addition to his pastoral duties, Dave is Chairman of the Junior Camp Committee of Detroit Presbytery and serves in the City and Industry Committee which maps strategy for the Presbyterian ministry to the heart of metropolitan Detroit.

Now and then Dave works in a bridge game and a round of golf but family life is his most important "off-duty" activity.

Don was graduated from William Penn Charter School in Philadelphia before coming to Princeton and earning his A.B. in Biology. He served on the Undergraduate Board of Governors of Elm Club, on the Cabinet of Westminster Fellowship and as Manager of varsity hockey.

Two nearly salary-less years after graduation were spent in research (for experience) at Philadelphia General Hospital, then at Temple University Medical School. At the latter Don did some teaching and basic biological research. He saw his name in several papers published in medical journals here and abroad — but nearly starved.

In 1953 he joined E. R. Squibb & Sons as Full Line Representative, then Professional Representative in the Philadelphia area. Five years later he joined Geigy Pharmaceuticals as Representative in the Miami Beach to Key West territory, taking over the Hospital Sales responsibility for the entire state of Florida early in 1960. His work involves much travel, but pay and sunny Florida "before retirement" are worth it.

Family responsibilities limit fishing, hunting and skin diving, but clear-weather outdoor activities are being enjoyed. Don has published several magazine articles in Skin Diver Magazine. For a time, before traveling south, Don chaired the Middle Atlantic Underwater Council and served as President of the Philadelphia Depth Chargers.

When Don moved to Florida he served briefly as Vice President of the Florida Chapter of the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation and now sits on its Board of Directors.

Kelsey was graduated from Oakwood High School in Dayton, Ohio and came to Princeton to study Politics. He was Vice-president of Prospect Club, active in the band, WPRU, Theatre Intime and in the Community Players.

Columbia University conferred the B.S. degree on Kelsey. While there he served as President of the Government Club. He also worked at the Council on Foreign Relations for two years as a reporter for a study group.

Since 1951 Kelsey has sold and operated real estate in New York City's Greenwich Village, with emphasis on conversion of old dwellings to apartments. He has also acted as agent in the conversion of several clubs into off-Broadway theatres.

In the 1956 campaign he was co-director of the radio and television fund drive for Stevenson. The following year he wrote the dining-out column for the weekly Village Voice under the name Ernest Trencherman (pun intended).

"Ulysses in Nighttown" was co-produced by Kelsey in June of 1958. It was based on the James Joyce novel and starred Zero Mostel and Belita, directed by Burgess Meredith and Valerie Bettis. The play was published in paperback by Random House and produced in London and Paris.

Kelsey purchased the lease on the former "Cafe Society Downtown," a famous Greenwich Village night club. Presently he is supervising its conversion into a theatre-cabaret. He considers himself a successful investor in off-Broadway plays and also has a few shares in uptown productions.

Uli came to Princeton from the Hermann Leitz School in Hessia, Germany. He studied chemistry, being active in Colonial, International, and Mountaineering Clubs.

Upon his return to Germany Uli continued his chemistry education at Goettingen University, earning the German equivalent to the M.S. and Ph.D. degrees. He has traveled extensively in western Europe, managed a Goettingen (northern Germany) student center, which had been founded by the American Friends Service Committee in 1948 for German and foreign students.

Uli's thesis was written in the field of organic chemistry (constitution of natural products) and related to antibiotics research. It was published in the 1955 "Diplom-Chemiker." He interrupted his studies with a six-month trip to Brazil, "which continues to be second home address: c.p. 36, Rolandia/Parana."

Some time was spent in practical and management training in industry with Margarine-Union AG (German Unilever) and in England with Imperial Chemical Industries. Since 1959 Uli has been associated with the patent law firm, where he is presently training for qualification (expected in 1962) with a view to becoming a partner.

Hobbies include sailing, skiing, theater and—above all—traveling. This year Uli has his sights set on Spain and Portugal.

Gerry came to Princeton from Deerfield Academy for his A.B., earned in the Woodrow Wilson S.P.I.A. He was active as Treasurer of Cottage Club, Co-chairman of Frosh Glee Club, President of Orange Key Frosh Committee, and Captain of the 150 lb. Crew.

Upon graduation Gerry served as a First Lieutenant in the Army until 1954. He then joined the First National City Bank of New York and headed for overseas in 1957. He was assigned to the Paris office for a year, then to the London office for a year and then returned to Paris, his present location. Gerry's main function is to help American companies who seek to establish themselves overseas. He also works with the bank's continental representative contacting clients on the European continent.

Athletically speaking, Gerry plays tennis, goes skiing, and is now trying to learn something about hunting (pheasant and boar). Husband and wife are concentrating on French and German through literature, theater, and conversation. Active life in Paris keeps Gerry stimulated, and his stimulating job keeps him active. He is "always happy to see friends who come through Paris."

Married: Eunice H. Myers, December 17, 1955

Child: Robert Myers Middleton, October 17, 1958

Bob came to Princeton via Harrisburg Academy and The Hill School in Pottstown, Pennsylvania to study Political Science. Because of a minor technicality (senior comprehensives!) Bob did not graduate. Instead he enlisted in the Army, which assigned him to the Security Agency. In service he learned Russian (one year) and spent one year in Alaska—"a breathtaking place, but a far better one for a civilian with money than an Army enlisted man."

Upon his return to civilian life Bob went to work for the Navy Department for six months, then decided it was time to get his A.B. He received it (cum laude) after transferring credits and going to classes for a year and a half at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

Bob went to work as assistant sales manager for Hill Electronics, Inc., but after nine months moved on to a training program in state government in Harrisburg. Bob has "risen steadily upward" ever since. First he moved into a slot in the Governor's office in research and budget work, preparing anything from press releases to big reports. In April of 1960 he changed to Research and Statistics with the accent on social and political developments. In his present capacity Bob takes part in turning out numerous information publications."

Bob enjoys reading, gardening, classical and jazz music, and singing in the church choir. He is news editor of the church newspaper, belongs to an historical and a statiscal organization and spends a good deal of his spare time fixing up his 45-year-old house.

Married: Sally Louise Thomas, September 26, 1959

Dave came to Princeton from the Thacher School in Ojai, California for his A.B. in Political Science. He was a member of Court Club, and Rifle and Pistol Clubs, Associate Manager of Crew and a contributor to Nassau Sovereign. He also graduated magna cum laude.

Following enlistment in the Army Infantry, Dave was sent to OCS at Fort Benning, Georgia early in 1952. Upon being commissioned he served in California and Korea until April of 1957 when he took his discharge as a First Lieutenant in order to accept a job as area specialist with the Department of the Army.

Late in 1957 Dave was sent to Georgetown University for a one-year course in the Serbo-Croatian language in preparation of being assigned to the Military Assistance unit in Belgrade, Yugoslavia. When this group was withdrawn in April of 1958, Dave was left in language training despite the fact that the Department of Army had no plans for the utilization of personnel then in training in the Serbo-Croatian language. No job had materialized by the time his course was finished, and he applied for appointment to the Foreign Service.

Dave joined the Foreign Service and is presently assigned as Vice Consul at the Consulate General in Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

John came to Princeton from the California Preparatory School to earn his A.B. in Psychology. He was active in Court Club.

Following graduation John took a summer job but soon learned that the draft board had decided that the Army could no longer dispense with his services. Three years and once around the world later, the time came for his return to Los Angeles being discharged as a 2nd Lieutenant.

In 1954 John joined the Travelers Insurance Company, his second employer, and now holds a position of claims examiner. He was dismayed to find Los Angeles "disorganized, sprawling giant, exciting and terrifying, having great promise, and yet needing the skill, experience and energy of everyone willing to serve his fellow-man by helping create a metropolitan community from a desert." Having found a purpose, a means to implement it became necessary. Thus John entered night classes at the University of Southern California Law School, where he received his LL.B. in June of 1960.

John serves as usher at his church and says that "family, job and school keep me hopping."

Children: Rebecca Moran, November 17, 1955
Elizabeth Moran, August 17, 1957
Victoria Moran, August 17, 1957
Christopher Brian Moran, October 17, 1960

Jack arrived at Princeton via West Orange High to earn a B.S. in Engineering. He was treasurer of Dial Lodge, president of A.S.C.E., secretary-treasurer of Engineering Council, belonged to the Senior Executive Committee and acted as captain at dining halls.

After six months in a Bethlehem Steel training program, Jack joined the Navy Civil Engineer Corps. He was in charge of construction and public works projects.

Leaving the Navy after three years, Jack went to work as a professional engineer and architect. In 1959 he started his own architectural practice, but Princeton's building program tempted him to take a job with the University, his present employer. Jack enjoys his work so much that he expects to become a permanent resident of Tiger Town.

He hopes to make skiers out of his wife and their three daughters and has taken up sculpture under Joe Brown. Jack serves on a condemnation commission and would like to become more active in the community and politics as his time and opportunity permit.

Art came to Princeton from Choate School for his B.S. in geological engineering. He belonged to Charter Club and played hockey as well as lacrosse.

The Army beckoned Art a few months after graduation and employed him as a 1st Lieutenant for two years—as an engineer in the United States and as an intelligence officer in Korea.

In the summer of 1953 Art decided to become a lawyer, and the next three years found him at Harvard Law School earning his LL.B. While there he participated in Moot Court Competition and rendered legal assistance to indigent criminal defendants.

Following graduation one year was spent at law clerk with the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. Art then went into private practice with a 10-man law firm in Concord, New Hampshire.

As father of three daughters Art seeks escape in Boy Scouting as scoutmaster, troop committeeman and fund raiser. In his spare time he enjoys reading, skiing, hiking, tennis, refereeing hockey games and "working for his wife."

Lew arrived at Princeton from The Haverford School and earned his A.B. in Religion. He was a member of Prospect Club, Chairman of the Daily Princetonian, PBK, Rhodes Scholar and received highest honors in the department.

At the University of Oxford Lew received his B.A. and M.A. degrees, from Princeton Theological Seminary his B.D., and from the Princeton University Graduate School also an M.A., with his Ph.D. forthcoming in June of 1961.

Attendance at various Christian world conferences provided extensive travel in Europe while attending Oxford University, 1951-54. The year 1954-55 saw Lew as a Teaching Fellow in the New Testament, Assistant in Instruction at Princeton University's Department of Religion. The following year he was Presbyterian University Pastor at Princeton, being ordained minister of the now United Presbyterian Church.

Lew's many studies and church activities nevertheless permitted him time for earning a Private Pilot's License in 1955.

He was appointed Secretary of the Department of Theology, World Presbyterian Alliance, with special responsibility for preparation for the 18th General Council of Alliance scheduled for 1959, for church union studies and for studies of problems of religious liberty.

In October of 1957 Lew took up residence in Geneva, Switzerland. He is the staff member in charge of theological discussions at the 18th General Council, World Presbyterian Alliance, Sao Paulo, Brazil, July-August, 1959. He has also served as lecturer on ecumenics at the Union Theological Seminary, Buenos Aires, Argentina and at the Presbyterian Seminary at Campinas, Brazil.

Children: Stanton Orser, July, 1958

Leland Orser, August, 1960

Tony graduated from Lawrenceville before coming to Princeton and earning his Bachelor's degree in English. He was active in 150 lb. football, wrestling, lacrosse and Cottage Club.

From graduation to 1953 the Navy gave Tony a berth as a Lieutenant (j.g.) patrolling the East Coast as well as the Far East.

The University of Michigan's Law School saw Tony during the three years following service and issued him an LL.B. in 1956. One summer was spent with the United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, but then Tony headed for San Francisco where he joined the McCutchen firm in 1956, was trained and moved to his present employer—Allan, Miller, Groezinger, Keesling & Martin.

Tony participated in Republican activities and is a Director of the Volunteers for Better Government.

Home: 3614 Aurora Circle, Salt Lake City 17, Utah

Business: American Brake Shoe Company, Salt Lake City, Utah

Married: Doris Ocker, May 22, 1953

Children: William Lawrence Osborn, April 6, 1954

Clyde Belew Osborn, Jr., February 28, 1956

Clyde graduated from Groton School and belonged to Dial Lodge at Princeton. He left Princeton at the end of his sophomore year for the University of Arizona, where he graduated with a B.S. in Business Administration, majoring in Industrial Relations.

Dave's first employer, and his present one, is the American Manganese Steel Division of the American Brake Shoe Company. After going through their executive training program, Clyde was transferred to New York to sell alloy steel castings to the mining, quarrying and construction industries. It was then that he utilized fully his love and skill for flying and flew around the Northeast on business and pleasure trips.

In January of 1957 he was transferred to Asheville, North Carolina, to try and develop a southeastern market, and in 1960 he was transferred to Salt Lake City, Utah.

Flying, primarily for business, continues to be Clyde's main avocation with woodworking a distant second. He feels that "selling has come naturally to him and this plus a very happy family life and occasional sojourns in the sky make life worth-while."

Children: Leslie Woodruff Owen, May 3, 1954

Peter Hunt Owen, August 3, 1956

Douglas Parsons Owen, April 7, 1958

Marty came to Princeton from Phillips Exeter Academy to earn his A.B. in the Woodrow Wilson School. He was a member of Ivy Club, Vice Chairman of Undergraduate Schools Committee, Chapel Deacon; he also belonged to the Orange Key and played lacrosse.

Harvard Law School followed Princeton and resulted in Marty's LL.B. in 1954. That year Marty joined the Navy, serving as a Contracting Officer in Yokosuka, Japan. He traveled in Japan and saw Hong Kong.

Following discharge late in 1957 Marty became associated with Shipman & Goodman, a Hartford law firm.

Political activities have been directed toward zoning and schooling problems on the local level with additional efforts in support of some of the younger people who are now trying to rebuild the Republican party in Connecticut. Marty has participated in fund raising drives for his church, the Red Cross and Princeton. He is Secretary of the Princeton Alumni Association of Central Connecticut.

Business: The Quaker Oats Company

Merchandise Mart, Chicago 54, Illinois Whitehall 4-0600

Married: Marie Cusmano, August 28, 1954

Child: Robert Alan Paladino, June 5, 1957

Hugh graduated from Barringer High School in Newark, New Jersey before coming to Princeton for his B.S. in Chemical Engineering. He was active in Dial Lodge.

For a few months following graduation Hugh worked in industry, which he traded for "some wonderful housing at Fort Dix, New Jersey." Following basic and top-secret clearance, Hugh began "designing and installing things in which to grow 'bugs' (bacteria, etc.)." He left the Service after two years as a Corporal, having supervised the installation of some $10 million in equipment.

Marriage followed the Army, and was soon supplemented by work at the Quaker Oats Company, Hugh's present employer. He became registered as a professional engineer in Illinois and took a membership in the national organization of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. Hugh began with Quaker as senior engineer and was soon promoted to group supervisor of the Chemical Engineering Group.

Tish graduated from the Greek Gymnasium in Athens, Greece and came to Princeton for his A.B. (summa cum laude) in Architecture. He was active in German Club, Theatre Intime, and Phi Beta Kappa.

Upon graduation Tish spent two more years at Princeton on his M.F.A. in Architecture, subsequently moving to New York City and working for a large architectural firm for a year. Dissatisfied with big-city life, Tish moved to Boulder, Colorado, where he worked for an architect until June of 1956.

Since then Tish has been self-employed. His practice includes designs for residential, commercial and apartment buildings—combined with frequent work in urban planning. The latter includes an Urban Renewal project, re-designing downtown Denver (he is one of eleven architects chosen by the city) and a plan for downtown Boulder. Work to Tish has been "extremely rewarding in providing avenues for creative expression." An additional and contrasting activity has been teaching in the Architecture School at the University of Colorado as visiting lecturer.

Some of Tish's work has been published in architecture magazines. He is very happy with Colorado as a place to live and has become a great ski enthusiast. During the summer of 1959 he visited Greece and his parents after an absence of 12 years.

Jake graduated from Mercersburg Academy. At Princeton he majored in S.P.I.A. He was a member of Elm Club and on the wrestling team.

He attended Michigan Law School for his LL.B. and then for approximately three years Jake practiced law with the firm of Gumbert, Corbin, Tyler and Cooper.

In August of 1957 he decided upon small-town practice and chose "the heart of the Pocono Mountains which has very good growth prospects." The surrounding countryside is beautiful, the fishing and hunting are excellent; there are innumerable golf courses around, and "it is a pleasant place to live." He is a partner in the firm.

Jake contends the possibilities of the area should not be overlooked by those looking for new industrial sites or real estate investments. The area abounds in community projects from Community Chest fund raising drives to a recently established art center.

Ralph Frew Peters, Jr., May 12, 1957

Ralph graduated from Deerfield Academy and came to Princeton for his A.B. in Economics. He was President of Cottage Club, belonged to the Right Wing Club, and played varsity lacrosse.

The Navy claimed Ralph and sent him to OCS the winter after graduation. Aboard the USS Coolbaugh (DB 217) he spent "three enjoyable years chasing up and down Eastern seaboard after non-existent Russian submarines," being conveniently stated in Key West each winter while summering in Norfolk or abroad.

His first and present civilian employer is the Discount Corporation of New York, a major dealer in the U. S. government securities market. Ralph was made an officer (assistant treasurer) in 1958. He is an institutional salesman in the New York State and Southwest territories, but occasionally performs a trading function as well.

Ralph belongs to the local political club and helps at the polls. He has been a member of the graduate board of Cottage Club and he is on the board of the Grammercy Boys Club of New York. Spare moments are spent bird shooting and fishing. Ralph has his own trained English Springers, and with the open country in his community enjoys a lot of pheasant shooting in the fall.

Married: Day Eggleston, December 20, 1951

Children: George N. Pierson, November 30, 1952

Elizabeth Day Pierson, March 1, 1956

Ned came from Deerfield Academy to earn his A.B. in History at Princeton. Cannon Club, Chapel Choir, World Federalists, and Christian Association occupied his extra hours.

After completing seminary training at Hartford Seminary Foundation (B.D. degree) he was ordained to the Christian Ministry in the Presbyterian Church, U.S.A. He received the Christian Ethics Prize. The next two years were spent as Assistant Pastor in Brooklyn, New York where Ned "came to know the problems and challenges of an old, downtown church in a changing neighborhood."

In 1956, he accepted a call to the First Presbyterian Church in Framingham and is there at this time. Among his extracurricular activities are directing junior high summer camps for the Synod of New England, serving on committees of the Massachusetts Council of Churches and directing a weekly religious education program in the community.

He is a "salt-water sailor at heart," cut off from the set and so sublimates his sailing instincts by work on quite an unusual sailing model. "She is a five-foot schooner, which will be completely rigged and able to sail under radio-control when completed." He believes it to be the most complete model of its kind.

Olivia Tiffany Pierson, February 20, 1958

Dick came to Princeton from Buckley School and Exeter Academy for his A.B. in English and French Literature. He played freshman hockey and squash, was a member of World Federalists and belonged to Charter Club.

After graduation Dick went straight to Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons to receive his M.D. in 1955. During medical school he spent three months (in 1955) at the American University in Beirut, Lebanon.

Since graduation Dick has been a house officer—various levels—at New York City's St. Luke's Hospital. His two years of service life were spent in the Navy between 1956 and 1958, including about a year on Taiwan where he learned some Chinese.

Along research lines Dick has worked on gastric bleeding. He is planning a career in cardiovascular aspects of internal medicine, hopefully academic medicine, possibly with World Health Organization but not on the administrative side.

Dick does his share of fund raising, and plays tennis and squash when possible — "ferocious but mediocre."

Married: Helen B. Alexander, September 11, 1952

Children: Jean Victor Auclair Prévost, August 13, 1953

Laure Helene Prévost, August 3, 1955

Alain came to Princeton from France. He majored in English, was a member of Key and Seal Club, participated in creative writing, and played rugby.

From the time of his graduation to 1953 when he served in the French infantry, Alain was a correspondent for the France-Presse News Agency in New York.

In 1954 Alain became a free lance writer. He has so far published two tales—Le Coute du Papillon, 1954; Le Coute des Trois Fières, 1957; and three novels—Le Peuole Impopulaire, 1956; Bonne Chance Grand Mème, 1958; Le Chalutier Minium, 1959. In addition Alain has published three novels for children and several short stories.

Along political lines, Alain has directed most of his journalistic efforts against the present official policy of the French government in Algeria and for the peaceful settlement of the war through open negotiations with the rebel leaders.

He manages to find some time to do some hiking, swimming and shooting.

Will graduated from Oneida High School, New York. At Princeton he earned an A.B. in History, was a member of Cannon Club, served as a class officer and played varsity football, basketball and baseball. He was president of the Varsity Club and was awarded the Kellogg trophy, the Kafer cup and the Wm. Clarke award.

During the first four years after graduation, Will's major adventures included two years in the Air Force, three "campaigns" of Minor League baseball with the New York Giant chain, and the completion of a Master's Degree in history and education at Colgate University. The next five years were spent teaching and coaching at several schools (Kenmore High School, New York, Manlius School, New York, and Punahou School, Hawaii), participating in summer camping, and doing counseling and admissions work at Hamilton College in the capacity of Assistant Director of Admissions. Will briefly returned to the "fold" as Assistant Director of Student Aid at Princeton and Freshman football and Varsity baseball assistant, and is now Assistant Dean of Students at Glassboro State College, New Jersey.

Will has managed to stay quite healthy ("hot cereal every morning") by playing tennis, golf, softball and squash. He played competitive basketball until 1958 when he was awarded a trophy for being the oldest active player who had improved the most during the season.

Child: David Darwin Reichow, January 6, 1960

Dave graduated from University School in Shaker Heights, Ohio and earned his A.B. in Economics from Princeton, where he belonged to Cannon Club and participated in intramural athletics.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio accepted Dave for its production management training program but saw him leave after one year to follow draft board orders. He took basic training in Kentucky, then was assigned to Camp Rucker, Alabama as cashier in the Finance Office. He was sent to Finance School and graduated first in his class of about 100. Promoted to sergeant, Dave left the service after 22 months.

Upon return to Goodyear and the completion of his training there, he spent the last six months as supervisor. He was then assigned to the Efficiency Department, performing time-study work, grievance meetings and similar duties. Dave left Goodyear for his present employer, the American Machine & Foundry Company in February of 1957.

His original employment with the new company was in the capacity of assistant to the Director of Personnel. Next he became Security Officer for the Executive Offices, dealing with classified information. Dave handled the company contribution program and was recently elected Secretary of the AMF Foundation, a non-profit charitable organization which makes contributions on the company's behalf. In 1960 Dave was promoted to Personnel Manager for executive offices, responsible for employment, record keeping, training, safety, etc.

Dave has been active in Princeton affairs and was secretary and treasurer of the local alumni club. He was just given the job of District Representative for New York City. Despite all the work at the office, Dave has learned to fly and holds a Private Pilot's License.

Tracy came to Princeton from the Loomis School for his A.B. in English in a special program of the humanities. He was a member of Prospect Club, manager of Campus Center Snack Bar, made Phi Beta Kappa and graduated with high honors.

The first four years following Princeton were spent at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, graced at their finish with an M.D. degree. He then interned for one year at the University of Pittsburgh Hospital.

After marriage in 1956 Tracy joined the Air Force as a Captain and for two years served as a flight surgeon on a base just outside Tokyo, Japan. He had a chance to fly all over the Far East and found service life "great."

In July 1959 he returned to residency on the First Medical Division at New York's Bellevue Hospital, where he intends to complete it. Afterwards, practice in Greensburg, Pennsylvania is likely. Tracy is happy with his life and believes "it would be hard to imagine being happier doing anything else under the sun."

Business: Sel-Mor Garment Company
18th and Olive Streets, St. Louis, Missouri GA 1-3312

Married: Ruth "Suzy" Bettman, August 29, 1957

Marc graduated from John Burroughs School and arrived at Princeton to do undergraduate work in Architecture. He belonged to Dial Lodge and was a member of the swimming team.

In 1951 Marc entered the Coast Guard for two years, leaving it with the rank of Lieutenant (j.g.). He was commanding officer for an 83 footer in Santa Barbara, California.

At present Marc is now "in ladies' underwear" as sales manager of Miss Elaine lingerie. He does most of the buying and is in charge of styling and merchandising for a St. Louis firm. Marc's business travels take him out of town about one-third of his work time, spending a great deal of time in the company's showrooms in New York City.

Among his sports Marc lists golf, skin diving, skiing and tennis, while water color painting takes up the remainder of his spare time.

Dave graduated from Cranford High School in New Jersey and came to Princeton for his B.S. in Basic Engineering, and was a member of Campus Club.

The Army Artillery employed Dave for two years upon graduation and discharged him with the rank of 1st Lieutenant in June of 1953.

Pratt Read & Co. of Central, South Carolina, was his first civilian and present employer. He joined the firm as an assistant production superintendent in the line of building helicopter rotor blades. In 1955 Dave was promoted to chief of quality control, primarily along lines of manufacturing piano keys and actions. Three years later Dave became engineer-in-charge and plant engineer of the firm's South Carolina Division. He supervised the construction of a new plant and helped put it into operation—400-plus employees at present.

While in the East Dave headed up the Citizens School Study Committee in Essex, Connecticut, and "got into quite a hornets' nest as a result."

Alby graduated from Berkshire School and came to Princeton for a year of undergraduate work in engineering. He participated in freshman 150 lb. crew.

Eight years of sales promotion and public relations on the staff side of things proved too much for Alby in 1958. He chucked a nice-salaried, nice-titled job five miles from his house for a straight-selling, straight-commission spot 50 miles away via the Long Island Railroad.

From 1951 to 1957 Alby was a member of the 107th Regimental Combat Team, New York National Guard, with the rank of Sergeant 1st Class.

Alby finds it "an exciting life, no money but with a thrifty wife, a heck of a lot of fun." He has two boys and states that "if, God willing, they get admitted someday to Princeton, I will personally guarantee they will graduate." With a little Tiger blood in them, they won't have any trouble at all.

Cy graduated from Belmont Hill School in Massachusetts before coming to Princeton for his A.B. in Psychology. He was active in Track, Princeton Tiger, and Cannon Club.

The past ten years have been spent at medical study and have led to an M.D. degree from Washington University Medical School. Cy took his four years of internship and residency training in medicine and neurology. His service obligations were met with two years (1957-59) in the United States Public Health Service.

Cy hopes to complete his formal training in preparation for clinical work in neurology by undergoing additional training in neuropathology at Langley Porter Neuropsychiatric Institute in San Francisco. He has not yet decided whether to turn to practice, research or academic medicine.

He is eager to settle permanently in the Pacific Northwest, an area of which he has become fond through summer trips. Cy is, however, also familiar with the opposite coast, having downed a 200-pound black bear in Northern Maine with the bow. His wife joins him in bow-hunting.

Married: Margaret Gauert, October 3, 1959

Child: George Marc Simmel, July 20, 1960

Gerry came to Princeton from the Oakwood School in Poughkeepsie, New York to receive his A.B. in Modern Languages. Gerry waited on tables at Commons, was a member of Princeton Photo Service and later freelanced in photography.

Shortly after graduation Gerry joined Acme Newspictures in New York but found himself a Marine by year's end. He was assigned to an Electronics Technicians School, then to a Radar Technicians School—Illinois and California, respectively. His subsequent assignment was that of instructor at his first school at Great Lakes, Illinois.

Following service Gerry rejoined Acme, which had become United Press Newspictures while he was in the Marines. He began as a picture editor in New York, then became newspaper bureau manager in Minneapolis, Minnesota. Early in 1957 Gerry took a two-week, 15,000-mile trip to North Africa and the Mediterranean. A year later United Press moved him to Frankfurt, Germany—his present location. Gerry is newspaper manager in Germany and Austria but goes beyond borders when major news events warrant it.

Gerry has seen much of Europe and covered many events: Death of Pope Pius, election of Pope John XXIII, NATO Foreign Ministers Conference, Eisenhower trip, Shah of Iran's wedding, etc. Work leaves little time for outside activities. Recreationwise, the Simmels go hiking or swimming. Gerry plays some tennis, reads or works on do-it-yourself projects.

Ed graduated from Upper Darby High School in Pennsylvania and came to Princeton for an A.B. in Political Science. He belonged to Campus Club, the Princeton Speakers Bureau and Whig Clio.

Having volunteered to return to Korea in 1950-51, Ed was still in the Army when he took his Princeton degree with the rest of the '51 class. He was awarded an Army commendation and the Purple Heart. As soon as he was released from Walter Reed Hospital, he went to Europe to loaf and has since been mostly in the Far East—Philippines, Bangkok, and presently, Singapore.

He went overseas originally with a firm that dealt in hemp and copra. Later Ed shifted into the selling end, and is now the Far Eastern Field Supervisor for the Borden Foods Company. His job amounts to a one-man operation, covering everything from Guam west to Red China, and from Korea south to Berma. Ed's responsibilities are on a policy-level—advertising, agency relationships, political estimating, etc.

His location is largely a matter of personal choice; whatever country is conveniently situated, pleasant living, and a minimum of complications in traveling, exchange, etc. is preferred. The tropical life means lots of swimming, water skiing and sailing.

Ed graduated from Walnut Hills High School, Cincinnati, Ohio. At Princeton he earned his A.B. in Chemistry, was a member of Key and Seal Club, the Glee Club, and was chairman of the Princeton Tiger.

The year following graduation Ed spent with the Cincinnati Chemical Works, Inc., in chemical manufacturing. Then he joined Emery Industries, Inc., his present employer, in its chemical sales training program. Upon deciding that sales and he were incompatible, he transferred to the research department and spent three years doing research on fatty acids and esters. Ed has now spent four years in Emery's advertising department as chemical advertising assistant. He handles ad scheduling, literature and direct mail production, and publicity. Ed has written several technical booklets for the company.

He is a member of the Advertisers' Club of Cincinnati (the oldest advertising club in the world) and participates occasionally in meetings of the Association of National Advertisers. Ed has participated in fund raising activities and is quite active in his church.

Stuart came to Princeton from the Hill School in Pottstown, Pennsylvania. He received his A.B. in English, belonged to Terrace Club, Phi Beta Kappa and played squash.

Uncle Sam claimed Stuart in the summer of 1951, placed him in the Army and treated him to duty at Camp McCoy, Wisconsin, Ft. Sill, Oklahoma, and Korea, where he saw duty with the 7th Division Artillery. He found the war "a thoroughly ugly one, both confusing and confused." It did not leave him with happy memories of military service, which he gave up in June of 1953 as a 1st Lieutenant, having received the Bronze Star and the Purple Heart. Stuart did, however, find the Far East very interesting.

In the fall of 1953 he entered the Department of English in the Harvard Graduate School. There he taught part-time for four years as a teaching fellow, while devoting most of his time to his own graduate work.

In the fall of 1958 Stuart left Harvard to teach in the Department of English at Indiana University, returning briefly for his Ph.D. in the spring of 1959. He has returned to Indiana University where he plans to stay.

Stuart spends most of his time teaching, reading, and thinking. He hopes in time to write something of scholarly merit.

Bud came to Princeton from North Plainfield High School, New Jersey and majored in Biology.

Having met his military obligations during the Second World War, Bud went to the Graduate School of the University of Southern California upon graduation from Princeton and worked part-time with Douglas Aircraft and Huntington Medical Instruments. After the birth of their fourth child, Bud went to work for the Scripps Institute of Oceanography and traveled to Mexico, the Aleutians, Japan, Midway and Hawaii on cruises, doing research in biology.

In 1956 Bud left the Scripps Institute to try his hand at supporting the family — "all had agreed that biology was fun but eating was nicer." He joined Convair as an instrumentation engineer on the basis of his record with Scripps, working exclusively on R&D testing of the Atlas Missile.

Charlie graduated from Deerfield Academy before coming to Princeton to earn his B.S. in Electrical Engineering. He was active in JV football and Cannon Club.

Although Charlie had served in the Navy for a year (1945-46), he served eight months in the Army (1953-54). The latter service came during his seven years with the Defense Department, which he had joined upon graduation. His travels took him to Korea, Japan, Taiwan, the Philippines, and Hong Kong.

Subsequently Charlie worked two years (1957-1959) for a Washington, D. C. consulting engineering firm. Most of this time he was in Jordan as Project Engineer for the construction of a radio broadcast station. This job permitted him travel in Iran, Iraq, Syria, Lebanon, and Turkey.

In 1959 Charlie went to work for his present employer, RCA International Division. He is a Sales Engineer in the Communications Department and hopes shortly to depart for Beirut, Lebanon with his family. He expects to live there for the next few years while acting as Middle East Representative for RCA.

Don graduated from the Germantown Friends School and came to Princeton for his A.B. in the Woodrow Wilson program. He was active in Campus Club, Whig Clio, and Phi Beta Kappa.

For seven years following graduation Don studied on the graduate level at Princeton (1951-52), Yale (1952-55) and Michigan, absorbing subject matter in politics, sociology, psychology and mathematics. In 1958 Yale accepted his dissertation exploring the country's gentle Republican folly of the 1950's and gave him his Ph.D. in political science.

The book, The American Voter (Wiley, 1960) was co-authored by Don. In the summer of 1959 he went to Vienna as an international observer of the Communist-run World Youth Festival, a trip which he is "careful to mention simultaneously with the fact that he once voted for Thomas E. Dewey for President." He feels he was well prepared for the trip by his experience in the Whig-Clio Senate and that the Festival "should be taken about as seriously."

At present Don is Study Director of the University of Michigan Survey Research Center in addition to being professor of political science. He believes that the Michigan setting "is best described as a sort of mid-western Princeton."

Business: Same

Married: Kathleen Sherry, November 26, 1960

Mike, who had been privately tutored at home by his father, Stephen B. Strang '23, came to Princeton for his A.B. in History. He left Princeton in 1949, worked briefly on a cattle ranch, then joined the Army Infantry shortly after the outbreak of the Korean conflict. He left the service a 2nd Lieutenant in 1953 and worked a year in the Production Planning Department of the United States Steel Fairless Works before returning to Princeton in the fall of 1954.

He received his degree in 1956, having rowed in the Heavyweight Crew Squad, been a member of Colonial Club, and served as Captain of a Pick-up Polo Team. Next Mike entered the University of Geneva, Faculté des Lettres, as a graduate student, and upon his return the following year worked in the Underwriting Department of the First Boston Corporation in New York.

Since the fall of 1959 Mike has been in Colorado trying to get a cattle ranching venture launched in partnership with his brother, Stephen B. Strang, Jr., '57 and Thomas Turnbull '59. The success of this effort will determine whether Mike will return to banking. Mike has found uranium on his property ("about five years too late") but only future core drilling will reveal the significance of this discovery.

Skiing (broken legs twice), bad tennis, poorer golf, and the breaking and training of hunters, jumpers, polo ponies and cow horses constitute Mike's athletic endeavors. He is also a licensed judge in the American Horse Shows Association.

Mike came to Princeton from Deerfield Academy, Massachusetts, and majored in History. He was a member of Elm Club, and was president of Theatre Intime.

Shortly after graduation Mike was called into the Army for two years. After his discharge from the service, he spent a short time in Maine and then moved to California to do graduate work at the University of California. His study of United States diplomatic history ceased when he decided to enter the land development field. Mike is now in business for himself building speculation houses in the $20,000 to $45,000 range in the Berkeley Hills area overlooking San Francisco Bay.

Several feature articles, one in color, have been written in newspapers about Mike's house and occasionally a photograph of one of his cars appears in a newspaper or magazine. Cars of the 1925 to 1940 models are a hobby with Mike and he presently owns two 1929 and one 1931 Rolls-Royces and a 1938 Bugatti. He has entered his cars in several shows and they have frequently won first prize.

Herb came to Princeton from Cleveland Heights High School in Ohio. He was a member of Prospect Club, the Glee Club, Theatre Intime, and the Triangle Club. He received an A.B. in English Literature, was Phi Beta Kappa and graduated with high honors.

Following graduation Herb worked as a singer and actor until late in 1952 when he was drafted into the Army. His service time was spent with the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service at Fort Dix, New Jersey, where he became interested in the production and writing side of theater and television.

In June of 1955 Herb received his M.A. in Literature and Drama from Columbia University. The following July he was selected for the NBC management training program, and became a Unit Manager. Some of his shows included THE BIG STORY, THE JONATHAN WINTERS SHOW, WIDE, WIDE WORLD, MEET THE PRESS and TREASURE HUNT. Along the way Herb had some modest success as the singer-writer of a record album—FOLK MUSIC FOR PEOPLE WHO HATE FOLK MUSIC. Because of it he became a member of ASCAP and appeared on TODAY, TONIGHT and other TV shows.

In March of 1958, he resigned from NBC when Jan Murray offered him an associate producer's job and since then has been on a free-lance merry-go-round. Herb doesn't lay claim to too many hits. BRAIN AND BRAWN led to interesting travel, but it failed to make him rich. Herb reports that he is currently involved in some interesting program development projects.

Charlie graduated from Phillips Exeter before coming to Princeton for his A.B. in Architecture. He was active as Vice President of Colonial Club.

After graduation Charlie spent the next three years in New York to sample that city and try out the field of architecture. A realization that he was not going to be another Wright — "You are always the last to know" — struck Charlie after spending three months of "designing" bathrooms for a high school. He headed for Oklahoma, originally home, and entered the real estate business.

In 1959 Charlie returned to the East to work in Princeton's Alumni Council Office. The following year he moved to the Fund Office and Annual Giving, finding that "working for Princeton is the most gratifying experience of my life."

Charlie has managed to put in some time with most of the usual charities and causes including United Fund, Annual Giving, YMCA, local symphony and art center, Better Business Bureau, and Chamber of Commerce.

Skid graduated from Blake School in Hopkins, Minnesota before coming to Princeton and earning his A.B. in Architecture. He was active in Tower Club and Rifle Squad.

One year was spent with Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, where Skid worked in the Architectural Engineering Department. Since then he has been in real estate—property, management, appraisals, shopping center development, residential sales, commercial and industrial brokerage.

In 1953, together with a Yale '51er, Skid formed a "pool-your-dough" type investment club similar to those now so nationally prevalent. They have emerged to a point where they are now corporately organized and soundly successful. As an outgrowth of the above, in 1956 Skid formed another corporation whose function was strictly that of buying, renovating and selling real estate property.

Skid has done his share of community welfare and political fund raising. Depending on the season, he enjoys skiing, squash and golf — 18 handicap.

Doing his graduate work at Harvard Medical School, Hal was vice president of his class, a member of Nu Sigma Nu and the Aesculapian Club and received his M.D. in 1955. Taking an internship and residency program in surgery at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Hal became interested in the heart-lung perfusion machine and the perfusion treatment of patients with cancer.

The next two years (1957-1959) Hal spent in the Navy as the Chief of Experimental Surgery at the Naval Medical Research Institute in Bethesda, Maryland, where his work centered in the cardiovascular field.

He developed a new heart-lung machine and methods of deep hypothermia which were employed for cardiac surgery in Bethesda and at Georgetown with Dr. Charles Hufnagel. A new method of coronary arteriography was developed and utilized for better diagnosis on patients in Bethesda and at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

As an associate staff member of the Brookhaven National Laboratories, in conjunction with the Atomic Energy Commission, Hal was a member of the team which went to the Marshall Islands to evaluate the effects of the radiation from the 1954 atomic bomb explosion. He was assigned to Project Mercury as a representative of the National Space Agency to study the effect of deceleration at the McDonnell Aircraft Corporation in St. Louis in preparation for designing the capsule to send the first man into space.

Hal's plans call for more training in thoracic surgery in England and then a surgical research practice.

Business: Dunham & Smith (Japan), Ltd.

P. O. Box 169, Yokohama, Japan

Married: Audrey Noel Soderblom, June, 1959

Child: Paget Valentzas, July 10, 1960

Dick graduated from Rye High School in New York and came to Princeton for his A.B. in Economics. He was active in Varsity Football and Tiger Inn.

Upon leaving Princeton Dick joined Continental Can Company as a trainee in their management development program. For three years he trained as a Sales Representative in their New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago and Cleveland offices.

During his stay in the Army (1954-55) Dick saw Germany, was discharged there and spent the next three years wandering about the world. He lived in or traveled through most of Europe and was the first American to drive to Moscow since the thirties. He then drove his Volkswagen from Cairo to Capetown—20,000 miles on a cross-Africa route, which allowed him to: go buffalo hunting in the Sudan, live on a ranch in the Kenya Highlands, climb Mt. Kilimanjaro, visit with the missionaries in the Masai areas of Tanganyika, assist a government veterinarian in tracing game movements on the Serrengetti Plains, have cocktails with Mrs. Harry Oppenheimer, and enjoy a tour of one of their mines in Johannesburg.

While in Yokahama, Japan, he accepted a job as Sales Representative in the Korea Office of a world-wide trading firm. Dick now works in Yokohama as Assistant to the Vice President, General Manager Far East.

Dutch came to Princeton from Loomis School in Windsor, Connecticut for an A.B. He was a member of Cottage Club and played freshman baseball and football, JV football and varsity baseball.

Mariage to wife Eunice followed graduation. Then both went to the University of Michigan — he to study forestry, she child education. The Navy called Dutch after a year of study and kept him for two years as an aerographer (AGAN). He saw duty in Florida, New York and Panama.

In 1954 Dutch began teaching at the Loomis School, his Alma Mater. He became increasingly interested in biology and went to Cornell University summer schools 1954 to 1958. At Loomis he taught algebra, general science and biology and coached JV basketball, assisting in football coaching. Dutch also worked in Admissions for several years as the assistant in that department.

With a Ph.D. in mind Dutch began full-time work at Cornell in September of 1958, receiving his M.S. in 1959. He is majoring in vertebrate zoology, with a minor in biology and comparative anatomy. His thesis will be a study of small mamal populations in Vermont.

Lefty graduated from West Reading High in Pennsylvania before coming to Princeton for his A.B. in Psychology. He was active in Cloister Club sports, and as a WPRU sportscaster—basketball, baseball and football.

Having served in the Army prior to Princeton, Lefty joined his present firm, James Lees & Sons Co., carpet wholesalers. He spent the first few months in the Bridgeport, Pennsylvania home office, then trained in Chicago for 14 months. His first territory assignment was Lincoln, Nebraska, covering North and South Dakota plus Nebraska. After a year Lefty was transferred to Oklahoma City, where he has lived since 1954. He is presently a Territory Manager for the firm.

Photography — including darkroom — is Lefty's hobby. Traveling away from home an average of four days a week unfortunately curtails civic duties, but Lefty participated in 1959 Oklahoma City Junior Hospitality Club Follies for a charity fund and hopes to do the same again.

Peter Ward, October 23, 1957

Edith Ward, January 30, 1960

Addison graduated from St. Paul's School in Concord, New Hampshire before coming to Princeton and earning his A.B. in English. He was a member of Colonial Club, the Jazz Band (IVJB), Phi Beta Kappa, and worked on the Literary Magazine.

From Princeton Addison went to the University of Rochester for his Master's degree. Having had his share of being taught, he decided to reverse roles. He went to Lille, France, where he taught "everything from the 'Faerie Queen' to the American Constitution" at the University of Lille. The town is roughly the French equivalent of Hoboken, but the local hot club needed a clarinet player, and there were a couple of Goyas in the museum.

Since France, Addison has lived in or near New Haven, first as a graduate student, then as an instructor at Yale. In 1956 he received the Sterling Fellowship and in 1957 his Ph.D. from Yale University, where he has been teaching ever since then.

Future plans call for a year in London and the writing of a book on English literature of the eighteenth century.

Dick graduated from Phillips Academy, Andover before coming to Princeton for his A.B. in Architecture. He was active in Crew, Rugby, Colonial and Triangle Clubs.

In August of 1951 Dick joined an Army Psychological Warfare unit, leaving it after two years as a 1st Lieutenant.

The next three years were spent with W. R. Grace & Co. During two of these years Dick worked for Grace Line and Pan-American Grace Airways in Santiago, Chile. He learned to ski at Portillo and has "managed to squander all small earnings on pursuing the snow."

Two years with American Air Lines were followed by another two at Foote, Cone & Belding, an advertising firm which Dick believes put him on the road to a career. In March, 1960, Dick joined N. W. Ayer & Son, Inc. in Philadelphia to "get more heavy experience in marketing."

Dick has had a New York Boy's Club gang and also worked as a 'Big Brother.' He is not married, "but still not against it."

Bill came to Princeton from Leland Consolidated High School in Mississippi to earn his A.B. in Economics (Sociology). He was active in Crew (coxswain 150 lb.), Campus Club and Nassau Lit.

The year following graduation Bill entered Johns Hopkins Medical School. During his medical school days he continued his interest in the social sciences and became involved in psychiatry. In the summers he worked with Dr. Lester Gliedman and published a paper with him on the treatment of alcoholics and their wives.

In 1955 Bill entered medical internship at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis. "Recovering from that harrowing experience," Bill began his first year of psychiatric residency at the Henry Phipps Psychiatric Clinic at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

After one year there, Bill was drawn into the Air Force and served two "very interesting years" (1957-1959) at the 5040th United States Air Force Hospital, Elmendorf AFB, Anchorage, Alaska, where he also managed some private practice on the side.

He was chairman of the Athletic Association, captain of the Varsity Hockey Team (Blackwell Trophy) and played baseball (University Store Trophy).

After leaving Princeton Chuck joined the Marine Corps and attained the rank of First Lieutenant during his two and a half years of service. He was awarded the Bronze Star with combat "V" and won two battle stars. In Korea Chuck was a rifle platoon leader and company executive officer.

Upon his release from the service he began teaching a little bit of everything at the Noble and Greenough School in Dedham, Massachusetts. Taking a year off to attend the University of Washington and to see the great Northwest, Chuck found that earning the M.A. degree in history allowed him little time to see anything but the inside of the library.

Returning to teaching, he found a position in the Nichols School in Buffalo, New York, teaching English. Since the Fall of 1958 Chuck has been teaching history and coaching at Lawrenceville. He plays on a local hockey team and is the chairman of annual giving for the Pennington area.

From Lawrenceville School in New Jersey Gray attended Princeton for his History A.B. He was active in W.P.R.U. and a member of Key & Seal Club.

Previous to his Princeton years Gray was a sergeant in the Army Air Force, August 1943 - March 1946. He received the Air Offensive Japan, Eastern Mandate Islands and World War II Victory citations. After Princeton he went to the Columbia Graduate School of Business.

Gray is primarily active in the advertising and broadcasting fields. In this connection he finds that he has so many job changes that it is even "beginning to bewilder" him. However, each change has meant financial and business future improvement and he has every intent of staying with NBC.

Princeton's annual giving campaign has been an enjoyable effort for Gray. He hopes to do welfare work or venture into the realm of politics in the near future. Much depends upon "who and when" he marries.

Skiing, golf and squash are Gray's most-enjoyed sports.

Christopher E. Zabriskie, August 3, 1960

Zab graduated from Hotchkiss School in Lakeville, Connecticut, before coming to Princeton for his studies in Biology. He was active in Tiger Club.

The College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City saw Zab for several years before he joined the Air Force in 1957. He left the service after two years as a Captain.

Having completed a pediatric residency, Zab is presently engaged in research at the Rockefeller Institute on Rheumatic Fever and Allied Diseases. In his capacity as a Research Associate, Zab enjoys the work very much and will probably continue in an academic medicine career as well as research activities.

Relaxation is found in reading, music, painting, tennis, skiing and Sunday afternoon soccer.

Married: Karen L. Benson, August 20, 1955

Children: Mark Jabriskie, November 7, 1956

Steven Jabriskie, August 21, 1959

From Dwight Morrow High School, Englewood, New Jersey Dick came to Princeton for his A.B. in History. He belonged to Prospect Club and was Leader in Chapel Choir for four years.

Dick went directly to McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, Illinois and received his B.D. in 1954. He was Student Chaplain during this time. During his last year he traveled to Immanuel Presbyterian Church, Milwaukee as Student Assistant Minister. Upon graduation this same church called him to be its Associate Minister, a position which he held for the next four years.

In September of 1958 the Milwaukee Presbytery decided to yoke together two struggling city churches under one pastor; Dick accepted this responsibility. He has been chairman of the Evangelism and Worship Committee of the Greater Milwaukee Council of Churches and has been in charge of the mass interdenominational Holy Week and Reformation Day Services in the city for several years. Youth Work of the Milwaukee Presbytery takes up much of Dick's time.

He and four of the local ministers play handball once a week in winter and golf in summer. He is a member of the Princeton Club of Wisconsin and he gets to New Jersey every other summer to visit his family.

IN MEMORIAM

EDGAR F. DAVIS

On July 23, 1960, in Jacksonville, Fla., Dr. Edgar F. Davis met instant death in a freak accident. He went to his death in the same manner in which he had faced life, helping a friend in trouble. For many years, a glider enthusiast, Ed was spending a Saturday afternoon enjoying this pastime and had taken his turn in the glider. Then, as his companion was taking off, a sudden rain squall came up with great gusts of wind. Realizing the danger of the situation, Ed quickly jumped into a truck to follow the glider over back roads so as to be on hand when the plane landed. Ahead was a seldom used railroad siding but this day a train was coming down the tracks, and Ed, intent on his friend's plight, did not see or hear it in time to avoid a collision.

Edgar was a pre-med student at Princeton, graduating cum laude. He was an outstanding member of the track team specializing in the broad jump and sprints. He won his freshman numerals, varsity letter, was ICAAAA champion in the broad jump and won a major award in a heptagonal meet with Eastern colleges in 1950. In that same year, he was sent to England where he was a member of the combined Princeton-Cornell team which competed with Oxford and Cambridge. He was also a member of Cannon Club and was elected to membership in the honorary society of Sigma Xi.

From Princeton, he went to Harvard Medical School from which he was graduated in 1955 with his M.D. degree. While there he was a member of Nu Sigma Nu. He went to the University of Vermont for internship and from there to the University of Michigan, specializing in radiology. At Michigan, he joined the Naval Reserve, was commissioned a lieutenant and placed on active duty as radiologist at the Base Naval Hospital at Jacksonville in 1959.

Edgar is survived by his widow, the former Nancy Snable—sister of Bob Snable—of Basking Ridge, N. J., to whom he was married in 1955, and by two children, Patricia, 3 and Gary, 2.

BOYNTON C. EMERSON

We were informed just before publication that Boynton is deceased. No details were available at this time.

THEODORE GOULD III

It was with the deepest sorrow and regret that the Class of 1951 learned of the untimely death of Ted Gould, who died for his country on April 26, 1952, when he went down with his ship, the destroyer minesweeper Hobson, when she collided with the carrier Wasp during night flight operations in the mid-Atlantic. The memory of Ted will long live in the hearts of the members of '51 who will never forget his ever-present joviality and kindness, his graciousness and sincerity towards others.

Ted was born at Lutherville, Md., where his family presently make their home. His love for sports and the out-of-doors were always part of his life. He came to Princeton in 1947 from Gilman School in Baltimore, Md., where he distinguished himself in athletics, being an All-State football tackle and lacrosse player. At Princeton, he played freshman football and lacrosse, and he went on to distinguish himself further as a member of the Class of 1951 championship lacrosse team. Ted's loyal support and untiring efforts in behalf of Princeton, and anything that he partook in, stand out as one of his many fine characteristics.

While at Princeton, he was a member of the Politics Department. The subject which interested him most, and the topic he wrote his thesis on, was Maryland, its politics and its problems. His wish was to come back to Maryland, after completion of his Naval service, so that he might participate in Maryland's public affairs, to help make it a better State.

The Class of 1951 was deeply shocked by this sudden loss of a classmate held in the highest regard. Ted is survived by his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gould, Jr., and his sister, Frances.

WILLIAM W. MILLER

The news of Bill Miller's death came as a terrible shock to all of us who were close to him. While flying from his mother's home on Long Island to join his family in Charlottesville, Va., Bill crashed in his plane—a Tripacer—a few miles south of the Dover Air Base in Delaware. The crash occurred about two in the afternoon on Sept. 23, 1958, on a bright sunny day with unlimited ceiling and perfect visibility. Little is known or understood of the cause of this tragedy. Eyewitnesses claim to have heard an explosion and to have seen the plane disintegrate in the air.

Bill came to Princeton from Deerfield after serving in the Marine Corps during World War II. He roomed with Walter Kissinger and Harry Brown in Witherspoon. A major in the Politics Department, he graduated with honors. After a year's graduate study at Princeton, Bill embarked on a long journey through Europe, North Africa, and the Middle East. While there Bill took a Master's degree at the American University in Beirut. In Boston, after his return, Bill met his future wife, Mary Ann Sigmond. They were married in 1956 and the marriage was blessed by a baby girl, Ann Elizabeth. Bill entered the University of Virginia Law School shortly after his marriage and he was in his second year when the tragedy occurred.

We, who were privileged to know Bill, found him to be a person whose honesty and simplicity permitted no sham, who saw people and issues in their essence, and who was determined to seek a true meaning and purpose in life on his own terms.

HENRY A. PETERSEN JR.

On Christmas Eve of 1956 Henry Petersen died at the Johns Hopkins Hospital of malignant hypertension. He was 26 years old.

Born in Houston, Texas, Hank attended Phillips Andover Academy before entering Princeton. He was a member of Quadrangle Club and graduated from the Department of Biology.

From Princeton Hank went with many of his classmates through four years of medical school at Johns Hopkins. It was in his last year there that his fatal malady was detected. Probably only those associated with him at Hopkins realize fully the courage with which he faced this foe. Though he understood the implications of his disease, he was carrying on his internship with quiet optimism when struck down.

Henry's friends were legion. A Christian gentleman in every sense, his most unique trait was his utter frankness. He was open and big as his beloved Texas. There was nothing of subtlety or artifice. Whether people were in agreement or not, the genuine manner in which he expressed his views and ideals commanded universal esteem.

A warm, kind, loyal friend, Henry's company was delightful. All those who knew him well loved him.

He was not with us long, but the memory of his enthusiasm, loyalty, and refreshing integrity will last through the years. Our sadness at his passing is tempered with pride in the way he lived and the way he faced his ultimate test. Princeton's shield shines brighter because of this fine son.

Hank is survived by his father and mother, Dr. and Mrs. Henry A. Petersen, and two sisters, Emily and Mary Petersen.

WILLIAM B. SCHRAUFF, JR.

Bill was killed instantly Christmas morning of 1950 when the car he was driving skidded and crashed into a pole.

He was a graduate of the Taft School in Watertown, Connecticut, where he was in the Glee Club and Choir, business manager of the school paper and yearbook, and was on the track and wrestling teams. At Princeton Bill was in the Sociology Department, a member of the Glee Club, and was a member of Key and Seal Club. He had planned to do graduate work at Columbia University.

Bill is survived by his mother and father ('22), Mr. and Mrs. William B. Schrauff, and his brother, Hamilton.
